GARDENER DYING AFTER FIGHT TO DEFEND RICH MERCHANT AND HIS WIFE

Springfield, Sept. 26.—Facing a rain of shots, after his employer had been forced back to bed and the millionaire's wife had risked her life to summon help, Henry Houlard, gardener, was injured so badly by a burglar early today in Longmeadow that he may die.

Houlard had opportunity to fire only one shot at the masked intruder in the dressing room of the home of Douglas [illegible] Wallace, proprietor of Springfield's largest department store.

The gardener went down with a bullet in his groin, while bullets sang over the head of Wallace who, unarmed, had been driven back to bed by the burglar and while the [illegible] Mrs. Wallace cowered in a hallway where she had tiptoed to summon aid over a private telephone.

OFFERS 42 MILLION FOR ALL AMOSKEAG ASSETS

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 26 (A.P.)—Edward C. Carrington, a New York broker, has offered the trustees of the Amoskeag Company $42,309,990 for all assets of both the Amoskeag Company, a holding company and the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company.

In addition, he proposes to divide equally with the committee shareholders any surplus or liquidation of the mills, machinery, water power and other property of the large textile plant.

The trustees of the Amoskeag on September 8 announced a similar offer of "certain New York interests" had been rejected as inadequate.

That offer had been a request for a 60-day option for purchase of all assets for $100 a share and accrued dividends on preferred shares and $90 a share on common shares, plus whatever might be realized from sale of quick assets and less liquidation expenses of $345,000, or one dollar a share on the common.

Carrington in his letter said: "I calculate $42,309,990 will yield a return of par for your preferred shareholders, plus accumulated dividends and approximately $90 a share for the common shareholders. My proposal assumes you will discharge all liabilities and distribute direct to preferred and common stockholders without commission or brokerage."

BRITISH AIRMAN VICTOR IN SCHNEIDER CUP RACE

Venice, Italy, Sept. 26 (A.P.)—Flight Lieutenant S. N. Webster smashed all existing seaplane speed records in capturing the famous Schneider cup for Great Britain today from Italy, which had held it for the past year as a result of its victory over the United States at Hampton Roads in 1926.

Lieutenant Webster averaged 281 miles an hour as compared with the record of 246 miles an hour established by Major Mario De Bernardi of the Italian Royal Air Force, who won the race last year.

HEARD NOLIN SAY HE 'SHOT GUY,' SAYS GIRL

Lawrence, Sept. 26.—Trembling and sobbing into a collapse, eighteen-year-old Mary Cwickla testified today in Superior Court that her sweetheart, Leo Nolin, held up a store in Haverhill and cried, on emerging, that he had "shot a guy."

Nolin, whose home is in Haverhill, is on trial with Herman Reed of Waterbury, Ct., for the murder of William Griffin, the storekeeper, and the girl is on trial as an accessory.

As she testified the girl broke into tears and sank to the floor of the witness stand.

Judge Quinn was forced to declare a recess to allow the girl to regain her composure before resuming the stand.

HALTS IN TESTIMONY.

Miss Cwickla told her story reluctantly. At times she left the questions of District Attorney William Clark unanswered. The answers she did give were in a weak, halting voice.

She was dressed in a blue turban

AGED WOMEN SAVED BY LADDER AS FIRE RAGES IN STATE INSTITUTION

Ten aged women were taken down ladders to safety by firemen, and eighty others were led to the street by nurses, as fire today swept through the Massachusetts Home for Aged Women in Binney street, Roxbury.

All the inmates were between 70 and 90 years old, several were blind and one was deaf, dumb and blind.

Several of the women risked their lives in a frantic search for the deaf, dumb and blind woman who was at first believed to be trapped by the smoke and flames but was later found safe outside the building.

Two alarms were sounded and Brookline firemen aided Boston firefighters as the flames, which started in the laundry on the first floor, spread upward to the second story, while smoke filled the entire four floors of the structure.

One of the women taken down ladders from the second and third floors was overcome by smoke and was sent to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. She is Miss King, seventy years old.

Arthur Ryan of Engine 13 was struck by a sash-weight falling from a third floor window and was knocked from a ladder, receiving a severe head wound and other injuries. He also was taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Many of the rescued inmates were on the verge of collapse and were treated by doctors and nurses

SPURNS OPERA TO 'GIVE HIS VOICE BACK TO GOD'

Arthur Hagan of Somerville came to his cross-roads today, the one leading straight and true to fame and glory and wealth; the other just as straight, but with none of the glitter and panoply and sheen of a worldly destination.

He took the sombre road in the service of his God and entered Brighton Seminary to prepare for the priesthood, putting behind him a certain contract as a baritone with the Metropolitan Opera Company and all that such a contract means.

Only twenty-three years old, Arthur Hagan leaves Boston College for his six years of hard study be-

CARRY TURNER, LOOKING LIKE DEATH, TO PRISON

By BERT FORD.

Portland, Me., Sept. 26.—Benjamin H. Turner's third day of hunger strike in Cumberland County Jail, undertaken to thwart a life sentence for the confessed murder of James D. Hallen, was interrupted today when he was suddenly transferred to State Prison in Thomaston.

Declaring he would kill himself rather than undergo the ignominy of life behind prison bars, he refused to dress when told the hour for transfer had arrived.

He lay rigid on his bunk as two stalwart jailers substituted for his jail garb the natty business suit in

BLAME SACCO 'REDS' IN 5 LEGION BOMB PLOTS

Nice, France, Sept. 26 (A.P.)—Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers were believed by the police today to have been behind three attempts to wreck trains in the Riviera region at the time the American Legion good-will tourists were en route here from Paris.

Thus far there is no clue to the persons who planted the bomb that wrecked fifteen yards of track near Golfe-Juan Saturday midnight, some hours before the Legion train was due, but the authorities are pressing their investigation all along the coast from Marseilles to Mentone.

Two other attempts, also believed to have been aimed at the legionnaires, were made near Monte Carlo, where boulders were piled on the track, and at La Bocca, near Cannes, where a bomb, which failed to explode, was planted.

Prompt work by the track inspection force averted disaster in all cases.

When the good-will train pulled out of here late today for Genoa Italy, it was heavily guarded and hundreds of track walkers were on the alert to see that there was no obstruction on the line.

The legionnaires headed by Commander Howard P. Savage and Commander-elect E. A. Spafford, knew nothing of the attempts against them until after their arrival in Nice.

The attempted wreck, instead of adversely affecting the welcome accorded the legionnaires here, seemed, if anything, to make it more cordial.

Paris, Sept. 26 (I.N.S.).—Paris returned to normalcy today. The few thousand members of the American Legion remaining in Paris have been reduced to the status of ordinary tourists. They are spending their time in sight-seeing and shopping without the obligation of attending receptions, meetings and banquets.

Legion caps still dot the boulevards and the cafes, but so far as the French Government is concerned, the pilgrimage is over. Most of the legionnaires have either departed for home or left for other points in Europe on a "good-will tour."

Workmen today began tearing down the huge "welcome" signs and other decorations placed in honor of the visiting legionnaires a week ago.

DIVORCES MATE WHO 'BEAT HER ONCE A WEEK'

In addition to being a spark plug salesman, her husband was also something of a live wire in beating her up and using a music rack in one instance, according to the story of Mrs. Mary E. Burnham, a blonde interior decorator, told in Middlesex Probate Court, where she was granted a divorce for cruelty today. Mrs. Burnham formerly lived in Melrose, but now resides at No. 317 West Second street, South Boston.

"I have had to work every day since he married me on June 22, 1922," she told Judge Charles N. Harris.

"There was not a week that he did not beat me," she continued. "On one occasion he used a music rack on me. On another he threw a dish and cut my knee. Once he kicked me and I could not walk for a month.

"Last New Year's eve he came home after drinking and after pulling me out of bed began to abuse me."

The Burnhams had two children, one of whom, Harold G. Burnham, born in 1923, has been legally adopted by a Providence family. Mrs. Burnham was given the custody of the other child, Robert, born on Nov. 17, 1926.

In the same court, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Asbury of Everett was given a decree on the ground of desertion from Frank A. Asbury of Wakefield and the right to resume her maiden name of Ayers. The couple were married in Boston in 1923, he being employed as a soda water dispenser, and she in the insurance business. They formerly lived in Medford.

hat with red ribbon trimmings, a blue serge coat and blue flimsy dress.

She testified she was born eighteen years ago in Windsor Locks, Ct., and met Reed and Nolin in Hartford a year ago while working in a tobacco factory. All three went to New York and thence to Haverhill.

On the day of the slaying of Griffin Miss Cwikla testified, they went on an automobile ride and had several drinks from a bottle.

"One more stick-up and we'll be all set," she quoted Nolin as remarking.

They drove up to the Griffin store and Nolin went inside.

"Reed was nervous," she said. "He kept saying, 'Why doesn't he come out?'

"Then we heard a shot. Reed said: 'There goes the shot, he ought to have known better than to have done it.'

"Leo came running out, shouting, 'I've just shot a guy, let's get out of here.'"

Miss Cwickla broke into tears and sobbed piteously. The court recess was taken when efforts to calm her failed.

Previously, Captain Charles Van Amburgh, State firearm expert, had testified that the bullet with which Griffin was slain came from the gun alleged to have been held by Nolin.

Van Amburgh testified that the shell found in Griffin's store and alleged to have been ejected from Nolin's gun bore marks paralleling marks made on a test shell that Captain Van Amburgh fired from the same weapon.

He testified further that bullet holes in a screen door were made by slugs from the alleged "Nolin gun."

a penny for my thoughts?
THE FIFTY WORD LETTER
MORE THAN THAT—A BIN FULL OF COAL!

The Snow Man of the Boston Evening American has an announcement to make.

The announcement has to do with snow, coal, coke and prognosticators, prophets or whatever you want to call the fellows who tell you something of the future.

In short, it this.

When are we going to get the first snow?

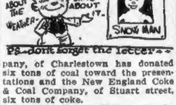
The prognosticator in Metropolitan Boston who comes nearest the day, hour and minute of the first snowfall in Boston will find himself recipient of three tons of the finest anthracite coal.

The second nearest will receive three tons of coke; the third two tons of coal; the fourth two tons of coke; the fifth one ton of coal, and the sixth one ton of coke.

All told there's fuel valued at $174.

Be sure that your prediction is accompanied by a letter of more than fifty words, explaining on what basis the forecast was reached.

The firm of E. S. Morse & Company, of Charlestown has donated six tons of coal toward the presentations and the New England Coke & Coal Company, of Stuart street, six tons of coke.



WE ALL TALK ABOUT THE WEATHER—
NOW'S OUR CHANCE TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT.
SNOW MAN
P.S.—dont forget the letter——

Address your predictions to the "Snow Man," Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop square. When the first snow actually falls in Greater Boston, the predictions will be judged by George Loveland, meteorologist at the Boston Weather Bureau.

Don't wait too long. It may snow.

GIVES UP RICHES IN OPERA TO BE PRIEST

fore becoming a priest in the same faith and belief that brought miraculous cure to his younger sister who recovered full use of her crippled limbs recently after making a novena to St. Theresa.

Protege of Otto Kahn, president of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, and of Joseph J. Lannin, hotel owner and former owner of the Red Sox, Hagan will sing henceforth only in the service of his church and its cause, because he believes he belongs to God and not to the world.

While his mother, Mrs. Bernard Hagan of No. 224 Broadway, Somerville, is radiant in her declaration of happiness at his decision, the youthful seminarian's host of friends profess themselves as not surprised, because Hagan, whose golden voice has been heard on many stages at many concerts, had been turning toward the priesthood for months.

Until recently Hagan was singing in the Bellevue Community Theatre, West Roxbury, at services of the Holy Name Church, conducted there pending erection of a church.

"A GIFT OF GOD."

It was only one of scores of churches beneath whose domes his voice has rung since he was a boy. Its rare quality and timbre early attracted to its possibilities.

When he was but six years old, according to his mother, a priest, noting the beauty of the boy's singing, asked: "Where did you get that beautiful voice?"

"God gave it to me," the boy answered.

As he grew older he was a favorite at children's parties for his singing, and when he had outgrown these he sang at more mature gatherings, such as bazaars and church festivals.

"Joe" Lannin was the first man of influence to hear the beautiful baritone voice. It was at Lannin's Summer hotel, the Balsams, in New Hampshire, and so impressed was Lannin he contrived to have Otto Kahn hear Hagan.

Opportunity for study and then advanced study was opened for the boy, but while he took the opportunity he kept steadfastly along the way he had mapped out and entered Boston College.

PRAISED BY CARDINAL.

He was a member of various musical clubs and was leading soloist at the Boston College-Holy Cross dual concerts at Symphony Hall With three other collegians he toured New England as the Boston College quartet.

Even during last Summer while Hagan was singing for Lannin at The Balsams, the youth was undecided whether he would make a bid for fame in the world or become a priest. Three days after registrations at the Seminary, however, he appeared at St. John's and entered.

His mother said today:

"Arthur has never seemed happy. He has been an exceptional son and while I will be very lonely to have him away, I know it is for the best. God has been good to us."

Hagan has sung at virtually all Catholic churches and Catholic clubs of Greater Boston. One of his greatest friends is Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts of Newton, president of the Philomatheia Club and a leading Catholic society woman.

The singing of the Somerville youth in both Boston and New Hampshire earned him the friendship of many other people, among them Felix Warburg, associated with Otto Kahn in Metropolitan Opera affairs; Miss Halstead, a singer of New York; Judge Donnellan of New York and Dave Shade, the welterweight contender.

Slayer Turner Is Carried to Prison; Looks Like Death

which he was tried last January. Turner was carried from his cell to the automobile that whisked him to Thomaston.

WON'T EXERCISE.

He looked more like a dead man than a living one. He was thin and haggard and shook like a leaf. He didn't open his eyes once. His eyelids flickered but did not open.

This physical and nervous condition was not due to his fast which had reached but its seventieth hour, but to his refusal to take advantage of the daily exercise and chiefly because of worry over his case.

PENS "DEATH NOTE."

When Probation Officer Stanley W. McGowen slipped the manacles on Turner he recoiled and his limbs shook. Indications that he would doggedly continue his hunger strike at State prison were given in a farewell letter to Charles E. Miller, an attorney in Turner's home town of Alberta, Ia.

Turner wrote:

"I have lost my appeal. What remains? Death only."

Turner was writing the letter to Attorney Miller when he was told that the officer had come for him from State prison.

At noon he spurned his eighth meal since he began his hunger strike at breakfast Saturday morning following announcement that the law court has denied his plea for a new trial.

GARDENER SHOT IN DUEL WITH BURGLAR

The masked burglar, slim and apparently youthful, escaped with $100 in a wild flight down the front stairs and out the front door of the magnificent home which sets well back on the Wallace estate in Longmeadow.

It was about 5 a. m. when the millionaire department store owner was awakened by a noise. Wallace snapped on the light in the dressing room and was confronted by a masked man who held a gun.

"Get back into bed and keep your mouth shut," ordered the burglar. "One yell and you're out."

There was no alternative, so Wallace returned to his bed. Mrs. Wallace, however, slipped out of bed and tiptoed into the dark corridor to a telephone.

Quietly she telephoned Rouillard, twenty-two-year-old gardener, at the cottage he occupies on the grounds.

MAY NOT SURVIVE.

Rouillard seized his revolver and hurried to the mansion. He leaped up the stairs and covered with his gun the burglar who was rifling Wallace's clothes and the dresser.

Instead of surrendering at sight of the gun, the burglar began shooting, firing half a dozen shots as Rouillard fired one before sinking to the floor.

Rouillard was rushed to the Chapin Memorial Hospital where surgeons said they did not believe he could live.

90 Women Rescued in Home for Aged Fire

from nearby hospitals in the Longwood district.

As the fire was discovered, the superintendent, Miss Ruth E. Linden, her assistant, Mrs. Ellie M. Charles, and a nurse, Miss Mary Anderson, ran through the building spreading the alarm. They were joined by nurses from nearby hospitals who helped lead the women out and kept them calm.

Besides Miss King, another carried down a ladder to safety was Mrs. Jennie Sprague, who said she was sitting in her room on the third floor when a fireman entered by the door, another by the window, and told her she would have to be carried down the ladder.

Mrs. Sprague had not heard the cries of the nurses giving the alarm to leave the burning building.

Mounting ladders on all sides of the building, firemen poured streams of water into the third floor windows and drowned the flames out on the second floor, while other fire fighters groped through the smoke-filled rooms and corridors on the two upper floors searching for inmates that, it was feared, might have been trapped there.

Most of the inmates were led out in orderly fashion by the hospital officials, aided chiefly by nurses from the House of the Good Samaritan, which is on the same street.

Two women, a Mrs. Snow and Mrs. Lydia Connors, were in a state of collapse and required treatment after being rescued.

The five blind women who were led out included Mrs. Martha Patterson, Mrs. Belle Bachelder, Mrs. Ada Rickardy and Miss Jennie Telon.

SEEK MISSING WOMAN.

When practically all the inmates were out, some of them insisted on returning and did return to the smoke-filled building to try to find Mrs. Lucinda Waite, deaf-dumb and blind, but it was discovered that she was at a nearby house.

The women were unable to save their belongings. The street outside the fire lines was a curious sight with scores of aged women, bemoaning their losses, sitting on doorsteps or standing in groups watching the stubborn battle the firemen were having with the flames.

Many residents of the vicinity cared for those who required treatment to calm them after their experience.

SHOOTS GIRL, 7, TO DEATH IN 'AVENGING' ELOPEMENT

SHE'S A HIGH FLIER AND LETS BOSTON KNOW IT

THEA RASCHE LOVES MEN BUT ONLY AS GOOD 'PALS'

CHILD ASLEEP AS SHE IS KILLED

New York, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—A 7-year-old girl was shot to death as she slept today by a 65-year-old man in revenge for the elopement of his daughter, the police allege.

The child, Angeline Constance, was asleep in her bed at her home in East 108th street when she was killed by a shotgun, discharged, according to police, by Biaggio Arsenio, who escaped over roof tops.

Relatives said Arsenio was enraged over the recent elopement of his daughter with a young man introduced by the slain child's parents.

The weapon was found in the little girl's bedroom. The police in their investigation, also discovered a shotgun in the apartment of her parents and another in rooms occupied by relatives of the dead girl across the hall.

Police learned that there had been violent scenes when Arsenio called at the little girl's home several times and upbraided the parents for introducing a young man who ran away with his daughter. When he called again last night, police said, he was driven away by shotguns pointed at him by the girl's father and another relative.

When the girl's father left for work today, the police said, Arsenio waited at the doorway and slipped into the bedroom. The mother was absent at the time.

Mrs. Julia Saltarelli, an aunt of the girl, said she heard the shot and saw Arsenio climbing the ladder to the roof. The hysterical weeping of women tenants caused a passerby to think the house was on fire and he turned in an alarm. The firemen discovered the body.

THEA RASCHE
German aviatrix in Boston spends most of her spare time reading about airplanes and discarding "mash" notes

—Boston Evening American Staff Photos.

LOVES ME? YES!
But it's only as "good pals," for she prefers airplane to any of them or their riches.

A PROFESSION, NOT A HOBBY
First woman to fly English Channel and now a sensation in America, Miss Rasche devotes many hours to study of models of new planes and other subjects in connection with every branch of aviation.

ADORES "AMERICAN BEAUTIES"
Her own garden in Essex is a source of great pride to Thea. She finds in Boston many specimens that, she says, compare favorably with the horticultural products of the Rasche ancestral estate.

THEA PREFERS AIRPLANE TO MANSION

By FRANCES L. BAIRD.

"Men? Oh, yes, I love them! Men are such good pals—but no man can ever take the place of my airplane in my heart!"

Thus airily Miss Thea Rasche, famous German aviatrix, disposed of rumors of a Curtiss Field romance during an interview in her suite at the Copley-Plaza today, while she tucked a score of "mash notes" away unread.

The notes, by the way, began pouring in after her radio talk last night, thanking Boston for the cordial welcome extended to her at the Boston Airport when she arrived from New York to do stunts over the city during the Boston Radio-Aero Exposition this week.

Miss Rasche is modest in the extreme and blushingly refused to pose for her picture having breakfast in negligee.

OF MUSICAL VOICE.

Her voice—ask the radio fans—is extremely musical and her personality very magnetic. She wears her honey-colored hair in a wavy bob that frames a perfect oval face with an apple blossom complexion a bit tanned from her Summer air rides but glowing with health that needs no cosmetic to emphasize its charm.

Miss Rasche is large but not stout and she moves with the grace of a woman long accustomed to the drawing room, for she was brought up in Essen, Germany, in a mansion. Her father is reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in Germany.

Like all German women Miss Rasche is an expert cook, though the lure of sports early claimed her time. Before the airplane claimed her she was well known in Germany

FIREBUG'S PLEA FAILS; FOUND GUILTY

Ousting his lawyer and making the final argument in his trial himself, James L. Downey, twenty-six, of Nashua street, West End, was found guilty today by a jury in Superior Court at East Cambridge of setting a series of fires that caused a scare in Cambridge on the afternoon of August 28.

Charges against two other youths, Alton Steeves of Somerville and Robert Greateaux of the West End, were nol prossed, these defendants having turned State's evidence.

Downey, who is the son of a retired Boston fireman, and nephew of a district fire chief, will be sentenced later. Among the three fires he set, two were in fire engine houses, and of two other fires he attempted to set one was in an engine house. Doctors reported he was feeble-minded and should be sent to an institution if found guilty.

As court opened, counsel for Downey announced his withdrawal from the case at the request of the defendant and his father. Judge Harold D. Williams said the defendant's case was, in his opinion, well conducted. Downey then said that his new lawyer was busy at another trial and asked a continuance, but this was refused. The jury heard his argument and deliberated thirty-five minutes.

FATHER HELD IN $2,000 ADMITS HE BEAT GIRL

Her face terribly battered, Miss Anne H. Prendergast, 23, of No. 5 Breck avenue, Brighton, appeared in Brighton Court today against her father, Thomas Prendergast, a stone mason.

Prendergast pleaded not guilty to drunkenness, and guilty to assault and battery on his daughter, whose condition was such that it was necessary to carry her in an automobile to court and return.

Sergeant Brown, who made the arrest, testified that Mrs. Prendergast went to the Brighton police station Saturday night and asked protection against her husband, who, she said, was intoxicated and in a vicious mood.

Several officers were sent to the house, but the man was not present. Later, after the police had gone, he returned and attacked his daughter.

Prendergast asked the court for a continuance on the drunkenness charge, whereupon Sergeant Brown requested substantial bail. Judge Connolly then questioned the defendant as to what he hit his daughter with.

"My hands," replied Prendergast.

"Two thousand dollars bonds," said the judge.

ASK FULLER TO PROBE STOPPAGE OF BUSES

Orient Heights and Revere residents today circulated petitions requesting Governor Fuller to investigate Department of Public Utilities action that revoked the permit of the Service Bus Lines between Orient Heights Square and the Point of Pines.

The department gave as the reason for its action the charge that the buses violated regulations by picking up and discharging passengers between stops. The buses stopped running yesterday.

Wife Says Dope Fiend Slew Aged Doctor

Hammonton, N. J., Sept. 26 (A.P.).—While the Atlantic County prosecutor's office promised an arrest soon in connection with the killing of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl, found with three bullet wounds in his head Sept. 15, Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl advanced the theory today that her husband might have been slain by drug addicts.

Mrs. Lilliendahl was quoted as saying her husband, while actively practicising medicine, dealt with all kinds of people, some of them users of habit forming drugs. She is said to have intimated that drug addicts had sometimes followed her and her husband when they were in their automobile.

Mrs. Lilliendahl is under $25,000 bail as a material witness in the case. She told the police her husband was killed by two negroes who jumped on their automobile in a lonely road north of here.

William Beach, a neighbor of the Lilliendahl's, whose name has been [illegible] into the case, is under [illegible] bail, also as a material wit- [illegible] has denied he knows anything about the circumstances of Dr. Lilliendahl's death, but he was placed under arrest Saturday night after long questioning by the police.

Rescue Lynn Baby, 2, Who "Steals" Ride on Auto Bumper

While Mrs. Gertrude McConnell of No. 92 Willow street, Lynn, talked today with a neighbor in front of her home, her baby daughter, Gertrude, two, was riding through the business district of the city perched on the bumper of an automobile.

The child was rescued from its precarious position by Frank A. Perkins of No. 254 Jenness street, Lynn, who halted the amazed driver, Axel A. Johnson of No. 82 H[illegible]ewell street, Brighton, and lifted Baby Gertrude to safety.

According to the police, the child left her mother's side and climbed on the bumper of an auto parked a tthe curb. Johnson, a few minutes later, entered the car, not seeing the child, and drove away.

METROPOLITAN FILM COMEDY PLEASES

Florence Vidor

Florence Vidor makes her debut as a comedienne in "One Woman to Another," her latest picture at the Metropolitan and Miss Vidor essays her role well, demonstrating plenty of comedy sense.

"One Woman to Another" directed by Frank Tuttle, is an adaptation of Frances Nordstrom's play. It has been cleverly picturized by F. L. Campbell and presents a number of exceptionally amusing situations.

It is the story of a girl and her sweetheart whose plans to marry immediately are interrupted by the appearance of her brother who places two children in her care. Then comes a quarantine on her home, and the man takes an interest in another woman. With Olive Gresham, played by Hedda Hopper, Miss Vidor plots a somewhat compromising scheme to make the man marry her.

Miss Vidor enters his home and imagines that Olive will appear on the scene and act shocked, embarrassing the man to the point of proposing. Olive brings several friends, one of whom congratulates the couple on their views. They then depart and Miss Vidor imagines her plot has failed, until her brother, a minister, enters and proceeds to battle the other. Miss Vidor on the spur of the moment tells him they have married.

Paul Whiteman, the jazz king, with his thirty remarkable musicians, is the extraordinary stage feature.

2 YOUTHS HELD IN $12,000 IN CHARLESTOWN SHOOTING

The cases of George "Butts" McGrath, nineteen, and Thomas F. Conway, nineteen, both of Charlestown charged with assault with intent to murder Warren E. Going, were continued in Charlestown court today for hearing October 10. Both were remanded to jail in default of $12,000. Going still is in a dangerous condition at Haymarket Relief Station.

Going, whose home is in Crescent street Charlestown, was shot when he recognized two young men in an automobile stolen from his friend James J. Burke of Pearl street Somerville.

CLIPPER SHIP FILM DRAMA AT BOSTON

A starkly realistic story of the sea out of the distant past, is to be seen on the screen of the Keith-Albee, Boston, where "The Blood Ship," is the featured attraction. It tells a tale of the days when the clipper ship plied the seven seas and steam vessels were unknown.

Jacqueline Logan

This was a time when only a real two-fisted man could follow the sea for a living.

The captains of many of these "greyhounds" of the ocean were brutes incarnate. Such a one is featured in the film, and his maniacal treatment of the crew is vividly realistic. So much so, that when in the end he is thrashed to death in a thrilling fight to the finish, there is a sigh of satisfaction from the audience.

Many of the scenes in this melodrama are not pretty to look at, but they hold one spell-brund nevertheless. As a contrast to the brutality and red blooded action is a sweet romance between a winsome lass and a sailor lad.

Hobart Bosworth is the featured star with Jacqueline Logan and Richard Arlen. The two latter carry the love interest. Others in the cast are Walter James, Fred Kohler, Arthur Rankin and James Bradbury, Sr. The characterization is remarkable and has the stamp of authenticy.

None of the sequences are forced, the whole proceeding along to a thrilling and logical climax. All in all, "The Blood Ship" can be checked off as one of the pictures worth while seeing. It is good entertainment.

Vaudeville and short films complete the bill.

DEER ISLAND FUGITIVE GETS AN EXTRA YEAR

Having twice escaped from Deer Island House of Correction, Lorne Shea of the South End finished his second "tour of liberty" today.

Arraigned in Charlestown on a charge of drunkenness, under the name of William J. Smith, he was pointed out as the man who escaped last June.

Taken to East Boston District Court, Smith readily admitted he was Shea and said he escaped with the aid of a relative "who visited me and brought a boat." He was given a year's additional time to serve. His original sentence was for a year.

A demand that the Boston & Maine Railroad be required to maintain a gate tender at Faulkner depot grade crossing was made today to the Public Utilities Commission in a petition signed by fourteen residents of Malden.

PREFERS LIFE IN AIRPLANE TO MANSION

as an expert horsewoman, always prominent in the hunt and a Diana with the gun. She enjoys her automobile also and always drives herself.

LOVES OUTDOOR LIFE.

Miss Rasche really does spend a few hours indoors although she grudges every minute lost from air piloting, and when she must be inside she reads books and magazines in German, English, French and Dutch all of which she speaks fluently. Occasionally she takes time to write home to Germany but the thing that she loves best is flowers. Her room was filled with roses, "almost as fine as those she cultivates in her garden in Germany."

She was the first girl to fly over the English Channel and the first foreign girl to fly over Paris, where she was greeted with great enthusiasm.

Should you get a close-up view of this charming young woman, who is twenty-eight and single, and not thinking about getting engaged either, then let me tip you to watch for a pin that she may be wearing. It is in the form of two bronze wings with the letters "Q. B." in the centre.

IN SECRET ORDER.

If asked what it means she will probably laugh it off and not tell you, but the truth is that she is the only woman member of a secret order of the "upper one hundred" of the air known as the "Quiet Birdmen."

This order, which meets secretly in Greenwich Village, has on its roster such men as Colonel Lindbergh, Commander Byrd, Bert Acosta and Chamberlin, Bertaud, Balchen and many other expert pilots. When one of its members is killed or honored the Q. B.s drink a toast in his honor. During the week in which Old Glory and a dozen other air crews gave their lives in attempting to conquer the Atlantic this society drank seven toasts for lost members.

Miss Rasche always flies with a mascot, a small but lively monkey that loves the exhilaration of speed at 100 miles an hour as much as his mistress.

Her plane is brilliant red-trimmed with silver. She is scheduled to do stunts over Boston today and every day this week to promote interest in the Radio-Aero Exposition and expects to fly to Portland, Me., from here, perhaps into Canada, and then South for the Winter. She is considering hopping to the Pacific Coast late in October.

FILM DEPICTING LIFE IN FAR EAST IS SHOWN

The photoplay "Chang" is the feature for the week on the screens of the Scollay, Olympia, Capitol and Central Square Theatres.

This is the picture hailed by film critics as the first "natural drama" of the shadow stage. To film its scenes the explorers, Merian Cooper and Ernest Schodesack, journeyed to the wilds of Siam, where the primitive struggle of man against the jungle still goes on in unabated fury.

Not a white man appears in the cast; every scene is real and nothing of this astonishing entertainment is at all make believe.

And there is a story to "Chang," too, a story of adventure such as has never been written. It is the true story of a native, Kru, and his little family. Kru's cattle are stolen by tigers, his house is torn to smithereens by elephants, he is chased by fierce leopards, and it all happens within a few feet of the camera.

"Chang" is the thrill of a lifetime. Nothing like it has ever been seen on the screen.

LITTLE THEATRE PLAYERS WILL PRESENT "OTHELLO"

Raymond Gilbert, director of The Little Theatre of Boston, announced that at the request of Leslie Merrill, assistant secretary of the American Shakespeare Foundation, his company will stage a production of "Othello" in a local theatre during Thanksgiving week.

The Boston company of Shakespearian actors is connected with the national Little Theatre movement and as yet has no theatre building of its own. Mr. Gilbert states that he hopes to engage the Fine Arts Theatre for the coming "Othello" presentation.

BARRYMORE IN FILM ROMANCE AT MODERN

John Barrymore in a romance of a pattern in perennial favor, entitled "When a Man Loves," is the photoplay at the Modern and Beacon. Dolores Costello is the featured player in a cast comprising Sam de Grasse, Holmes Herbert, Warner Oland and a halfscore other film luminaries. It is presented with a large symphony orchestra playing the especially arranged accompaniment music via the Vitaphone.

John Barrymore

The Vitaphone artists' presentations include Harold Bauer, the concert pianist, Sylvia Froos, and The Sunshine Boys.

France and the court of Louis XV. is the period and locale of the love affair of Manon Lescaut and Chevalier de Grieux. Selected as a pawn of the king, the beautiful Manon finds a champion in the young Chevalier.

The crossing of the king's purposes was a capital offense, and thus the young lover had to fight for his life in addition to seeking protection for the maiden.

Thus with court intrigue, strategic action and personal strife, dramatic incidents flow swiftly in thrilling sequence until the happy ending sees the lovers escaping to the friendly shores of the new world.

Mr. Barrymore shows his resplendent best in romantic acting, and the work of the cast in individual numbers and ensemble is of matchable excellence. The direction of Alan Crosland and the beauty of scenes and richness of costuming aid to raise this production to the superior classification.

COUNT VIOLINIST IN JOE RINES' ORCHESTRA

Joe Rines, genial leader of the Elks Roof Garden Revue orchestra, is quite proud of his first violinist. And no wonder, for the "Belgian Count" as he is known to the boys of the band, is none other than Count Lou Bonick of European aristocracy and former first violinist of the New York Philharmonic.

Count Bonick

Though yet but a boy, the distinguished young musician has appeared for years as concert soloist. He made his debut at the age of nine, and was educated at the Antwerp Academy of Music. He is the possessor of a prized instrument, a Strad, that has been in his family for upwards of 200 years.

BRITISH AIRPLANE WINS SCHNEIDER CUP RACE

Flight Lieutenant Webster's fellow officer, Lieutenant Worsley also of the British naval aviation forces, was second.

Lieutenant S. M. Kinkead of Great Britain, and all three of the Italian competitors, Major Bernard, Captain F. Guazzetti and Captain Ferrarin were forced to give up before completing the seven circuits marked out along the front of the Lido Bathing Beach.

Lieutenant Worsley averaged 273 miles an hour in winning second honors.

The distance of the race was 217 miles.

The winning plane was a super-marine Napier S-5, a monoplane of graceful design decorated in silver and royal blue. The fuselage is entirely of metal, the floats of duraluminum and the wings of wood.

Lieutenant Worsley also piloted a super-marine Napier S-5 monoplane.

Great Britain's victory today represented her third in the Schneider Cup competitions, her planes having won at Monaco in 1919 and at Naples in 1922. Italy also has three victories to her credit, having won at Venice in 1920, at Naples in 1921 and at Hampton Roads, off Norfolk, in 1926.

Count the Rings in a TREE

You can tell the age of many things by definite signs, like the rings in a tree. In a great business it is hard to tell age, for if the business is truly progressive it always keeps young.

Yet there are marks of long success. You can tell that Coward is no struggling young business with an uncertain place in the world by considering its great reputation and name. For sixty years this reputation has been growing, like a mighty oak. Sixty years ago the name Coward meant only a small workbench and the determination to make finer, more comfortable shoes. Today the name Coward means the three largest retail shoe stores in the world and a mighty prestige accumulated because that aim was achieved.

Dearest Anne:

Get out your bonnet and shawl, fair one, and prepare to join the big parade with your Priscilla—the Fall Shoppers' Parade in quest of all that's new and lovely in things mundane.

"Refreshing and Delightful" is the way a friend of mine described Dr Saul's scientific treatments when I met her in his office. I was so pleased, since I recommended him. She said her feet felt 20 years younger, and her shoes were simply lovely. I am truly delighted with the reports from many other friends about Dr. Saul, my competent podiatrist-chiropodist at 110 Tremont St., New Studio Bldg., Room 312. I do want to urge you, Anne, not to delay any longer. Enjoy foot health, so vitally important to your happiness, by visiting Dr. Saul. These corns and callouses that are "just killing" you will be relieved and with scientific care your feet will be put on the road to renewed activity. I wish you could see my new shoes—those fitted-to-measure shoes of Dr. Saul's. So snug and comfy and so good-looking—at $8.00 a pair, with arch supports built in for individual needs. You know that old saying, Anne—"an ounce of prevention." Then do go in to see Dr. Saul this week.

Only in a Beauty Shop

Staffed by experts can you hope for the results you expect. Experts get results not by magic, but by skill, careful training, intensive study and natural aptitude—such experts as Mrs. Young and Billie, of the popular French Shop, 3rd floor, New Studio Bldg., 110 Tremont St. Yesterday I saw a rather mousey looking little lady transformed into a Titian haired beauty through the French Shop's safe, effective method of hair dyeing. Why tolerate telltale, graying, streaked or faded hair when permanent beauty is so readily and reasonably restored? Speaking of permanents, a genuine Nestle Circuline at the French Shop is only $10. Who'd be without one these days? And I want you to meet Mr. Bur Anne, the French Shop's expert bobber and waver. His flattering finger waves bring out every good point. Scalp treatments are another specialty—and for a truly lasting marcel just call Congress 8166. The Shop of Satisfaction.

Lost! Life and Lustre

From last Spring's permanent. Found! A way to restore it to soft, shining beauty! Up at Miss Cheney's dainty Beauty Shop, 5th floor, 175 Tremont Street. Through just one treatment under Miss Cheney's newest piece of equipment — the famous Arnao Scalp Steamer. The only one I've seen in Boston, and such a boon to hair health and beauty. This steamer not only quickly revitalizes permanents, bringing back shining loveliness, but it prepares the scalp for whatever type of treatment is needed, opening the pores and making the medication twice as effective; replaces old fashioned hot towels in shampoos, removes sunburn and freckles when used in facial treatments, removes all kinds of dyes, hennas or restorers and reconditions the hair into perfect health. You'll love the grateful warmth of the Arnao Steamer, Anne, and most of all you'll love the truly wonderful results that it will accomplish in restoring your permanent to original beauty and promoting hair growth and scalp health. Shampoo, treatment, massage with tonic oil, and steaming only $2.50 complete. Tel. Capitol 2297.

Dainty Women Abhor

Any suggestion of masculinity—especially those dark shadows under the skin that hint of superfluous hair. Many suffer needlessly because of moles, warts or other embarrassing blemishes. Needlessly, because up at 120 Tremont St., in the electric needle studio of Miss Elizabeth G. Sparkes, these disfigurements could be readily removed. Miss Sparks is a real expert; and her work is enthusiastically endorsed by Boston's leading physicians. Her methods are new, safe, permanently effective and her prices reasonable. Isn't it a mistake to be handicapped longer by masculinely hairy growths or other blemishes? At least it costs you nothing to chat a few moments with Miss Sparkes. She will gladly advise you without charge. Or, telephone if you prefer. Her number is Hancock 7592.

What Holeproof Does for Beauty's Sake

Fall brings many changes in color—Stroller tan in shoes, the odd Lupin greens and Tamarack browns in fabrics. Months ago, Lucille, renowned Parisian couturiere, created the perfect hosiery shade for every new color—then rushed them to America for reproduction in exquisite hose by Holeproof. So that you, my Anne, could wear them simultaneously with smart Parisiennes. You'll find them in all their lovely completeness at Holeproof Headquarters—Talbot's, 403 Washington St.

Consulting the Lucille chart, admiring the chic Holeproof hose at Talbot's entails no obligation to buy. But you'll certainly want to when you see the lustrous silken beauty of the new Holeproof stockings. Holeproof hosiery has such a flattering way of molding ankle and knee, creating a chic, slender shapeliness.

And so reasonably priced! At $1.95 sheer, clear chiffon, silk to the very top, longer than the usual hose and cunningly reinforced for extra wear. At $1.50 a full fashioned hose with a long silk leg that comes way over the knee to a fine lisle garter top. Neither a chiffon nor a service silk, but midway between. And at $1 "the world's greatest stocking value," silk well over the knee, up to the narrow, lisle reinforced hem, the famous Ex toe for longer wear, shown in the newest colors. At Talbot's, Anne, Home of Holeproof Hose for men and women, at 403 Washington St. The store of friendly courtesy and good values.

How Does Your Garden Grow?

Woman's loveliness is like a garden. Carefully tended, it sings with beauty. Neglected, weeds creep in. Downward lines from nose to mouth, square contour, sagging lines under the chin, scraggly throat, are sure signs of neglect. For they can be overcome by the aid of a chin strap to lift and strengthen the tissues.

A perfect fitting chin strap is a most important possession for the woman of thirty—as well as for many of her younger sisters.

A lovely lady, a regular client of Filene's famous beauty parlors, owns proudly to 53 Summers and Winters. Which seemed almost incredible in view of her absolutely perfect contour. Until she told of a chin strap which she made for her own use. So remarkable were the results from this clever support that Filene persuaded her to make these straps up for their other customers. They are called the Jean Norris Uplift—a combination neck and chin strap, of selected chamois, tailored to fit the cheeks and chin and to round out ugly irregular lines on the throat.

The Uplift holds every muscle of the face and neck in proper position, may be washed weekly, lasts indefinitely and represents $5 invested in clean contour. Used with Filene's own special Astringent ($1.50), exceptionally rapid results may be expected, not only for the woman of mature years but for the younger one with the unduly plump face or underchin, or thin face and neck and sagging muscles. Procrastination is the thief of contour—and contour is the cornerstone of all beauty. So, at the first sagging line, the Jean Norris Uplift, at Filene's first floor balcony Beauty Shoppe.

What Is More Incongruous, Anne,

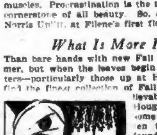
Than bare hands with new Fall ensembles? Flout Fashion all Summer, but when the leaves begin to fall hie you to the glove counters—particularly those up at Houghton & Dutton's. There you'll find the finest collection of Fall fashions in gloves at prices unbelievably low. I hadn't happened up to Houghton & Dutton's glove counter for some little time, though I hadn't forgotten the wonderful values I've always found there. But you can believe that I made a solemn resolution to get the Houghton & Dutton habit, when I tell you that for 89c I found the exact duplicate of the hand stitched, fine fabric glove I paid more for elsewhere, only last week.



Do go straight up there, Anne. For $1.15 there are pull-ons, of finest fabric, with comfy wide cuffs, embroidered in harmonizing shades. In the new modes, beavers, elk and champagne shades, beige, and grays of every degree. Embroidered gauntlets or strapped, beautifully made, Anne—at such a price! And you'll stand amazed at the display at 89c! Certainly the glove buyer knows her business at Houghton & Dutton's! The 89c gloves have turned back cuffs and exquisite blending of color in their embroidery. Even Bolton thumbs for better wear and service, and usually the thumbmark of "expensive." All the new shades and a complete line of sizes. At Houghton & Dutton's, Tremont & Beacon Sts.

The Milky Way

To facial beauty leads right up to the toilet goods department of Meyer Jonasson's, (Tremont and Boylston Sts.) where you'll find two new and interesting aids to loveliness. Most of us realize there's no more effective beautifier than pure milk, but somehow our amateur methods of applying milk are not so good. Now, however, a benefactor of beauty has prepared a Milk-Egg Bleach Pack and a Milky-Way Combination Cream which lead to a loveliness you've hardly hoped for. The Milky-Way Cream is unequalled for whitening and refining the skin, as a cleanser, and a real skin food. And the Milk-Egg Bleach Pack, of powdered egg whites and sweet milk, daintily perfumed, is an unsurpassed astringent, an enemy of double chins, loose skin, sagging muscles. Effective for acne, too, and retards the growth of superfluous hair, closing the pores. The Cream is $1, the Pack $1.50. Combined, they show the milky way to facial beauty.

A Sunshine Maker

Is our Sunshine Girl, Helen Lynch, up on the 3rd floor of the New Studio Bldg., at 110 Tremont St. Not only with her sunny smile, but by her clever fingers. Through a bit of bottled magic, skillfully applied, she will imprison the gleam of real sunlight in your hair so expertly that none will suspect it is not Nature's own handiwork. Not by a harsh bleach, but by a Parisian preparation distilled from herbs. Turns drab, faded light hair into gleaming gold, and gives a richly glowing Titian tint to darker locks. If your present hair color doesn't wholly please you, do let Helen Lynch brighten and beautify it. Or, if you prefer, she will dye it equally expertly to any desired shade. No wonder her book is brimful of appointments for marcels, facials, scalp treatments, tinting and dyeing, and those exceptionally lovely Frederick permanents for $12, including shampoo and setting. Evening appointments for your convenience (Liberty 0036.)

The Pride of Possession

Belongs to the woman who owns a really distinctive as well as becoming hat. At Audrey's, fourth floor of the New Studio Building, 110 Tremont St., you may have a velvet or satin hat made right on your head, just as felt or velour hoods are molded. At Audrey's, too, you will find beautiful one-of-a-kind models in newest Fall shapes and shades in sizes for every head. And at prices that make it possible for you to own a hat for every ensemble, if you like. The prices are as alluring as the creations themselves—$10.00 and up. And the wonderful part of it is they are not $10.00 or $15.00 hats. Each one is an exclusive creation fashioned of imported materials, with the perfect touch of an artist. Do take this as a personal introduction to Audrey, Anne, and make the most of the acquaintance. Time was when our crowning glory was our hair, but nowadays it's our hat—and if we are wise it will be an Audrey hat.

If I Had a Fairy

Godmother to grant me three wishes, they would be for three of the smart new dresses up at Leo Pass' Shop at 25 Huntington Ave., a step from Copley Sq. Each one was personally selected by Mr. Pass in New York—one-of-a-kind models, in the newest styles, shades and fabrics. I can't do them justice in words. You'll have to go up and see them for yourself. You'll adore them all—especially one beautiful combination of brown velvet and bronze lace, and another of black lace with bands of satin, over a flesh pink slip. A black georgette exquisitely embroidered in pastel tones is combined with transparent velvet and white silk in bolero style. And one of gold lace is mounted over a golden slip with touches of shaded jade and golden brown. Frocks for any time or type, at most any price you want to pay. Ultra smart, of quality materials that mean long wear. Convenient charge accounts opened if desired. You'll thank me, Anne, for telling you of these "different" dresses.

Are You Hesitating

About a bob, a permanent, a finger wave or a marcel? Living models at the Hollywood Bobbing Shop show Mr. Trocolli's wonderful work, and offer you a variety of styles from which to choose, with guesswork eliminated. Though all you really need to do to settle the puzzling question of the most becoming hairdress, is to let Mr. Trocolli study your type for a moment, and then mould for you a bob or wave that will improve your appearance 100 per cent. and bring you a beauty you perhaps haven't suspected you possessed. Mr Trocolli is indeed an artist, and it is always a pleasure to speak of his wonderful work—particularly his Nestle Circuline permanents at $10—any number of curls. Truly a $50 value, Anne. For expert dyeing, marcels, manicuring, facials, scalp treatments—any branch of beauty culture—you'll find satisfaction at the Hollywood Shop, 3rd floor, New Studio Bldg., 110 Tremont St., Con. 6437.

There's A Magic Chair

Up at 34 West St., on the 5th floor of the Lawrence Bldg., Room 807, in Dorothy Wanda's Beauty Shop. While you rest supremely comfy, Dorothy Wanda performs her rites — expert treatments, scientific restoration of positive powers, quick-result scalp treatments, magic massage. And methinks she must mix her fragrant creams and lotions with elixir from the Fountain of Youth. No wonder that magic chair is always occupied by a progressive business woman, society girl, club woman or—very frequently—visitors from New York, who tell me that even in the Metropolis they cannot find Wanda's equal. The same superior preparations Dorothy Wanda uses can be purchased at her shop—or by mail (10c. for postage). There's her wonderful Wrinkle Chaser and Tissue Cream, $1; her Lettuce Cleansing Cream, 60c.; Protection Cream in white, flesh or brunette, 60c.; a greaseless, perfumed Brilliantine, 50c., And as an expert in hair dyeing, Dorothy Wanda is in a class by herself—the highest class.

Frown Lines

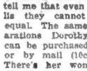
And smile wrinkles are blemishes. Why permit them to mar the beauty of your face, to make you old before your time? Erase them. Join the faithful ranks of lovely women who practise the Virozol habit. Hundreds of business girls, women, including society women, stage beauties, screen stars and home makers, are enthusiastic about the results they obtain through the nightly use of the Virozol Swedish Face Bath followed by the soothing, beautifying Virozol Almond Cream. The thorough cleansing with the astringent, the gentle smoothing of the cream means a face sweetly clean, completely refreshed, with every trace of weariness smoothed away. Nightly Virozol treatments mean a complexion that shows intelligent care, with never a fagged line to whisper of your busy life. You'll find both at R. H. Stearns Co., at Tremont St. and Temple Place. Virozol Astringent $1.25, Almond Cream $1.00.



Faithfully yours,

GETS TEN DAYS FOR CONTEMPT IN 'RAP' CASE

John Murphy of Dorset street, South Boston, was sentenced to ten days in Charles street jail for contempt, in an alleged "take-the-rap" case in South Boston Court today.

The case of Michael Diggin, South Boston, charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale at his store on West Fourth street, South Joston, was continued to Thursday, after Diggin had held up the court for twenty minutes by insisting he was John Murphy.

Diggin's store was raided by the liquor squad, and the proprietor, when bailed, gave his name as John Murphy.

When the case was called before Judge William J. Day, John Murphy of Dorset street answered the complaint. Officer Walter Higgins of the liquor squad told the court Murphy was not the man arrested.

Diggin was then found in the corridor, but on being placed in the dock, insisted his name was John Murphy. When Officer Higgins returned with a new complaint made out against Diggin he refused to answer to it until Judge Day threatened to jail him.

The real Murphy was then given the ten days' sentence.

BANDITS GAG CITY WORKERS; GET $85,000

Los Angeles, Sept. 26 (I.N.S.).—Held up, gagged and bound by two men in the offices of the city department of water and power in the downtown district, three employes of the department lay helpless while the bandits rifled a safe and escaped with $85,000 in cash today.

2 AUTOS AND 'L' CAR IN CRASH; WOMAN HURT

A flurry of excitement occurred at Massachusetts avenue, near Jarvis street, today when two automobiles which had been in collision and were being untangled from wreckage were struck by a one-man Elevated car after an injured woman, occupant of one of the machines, had been removed to her home, No. 186 Willow street, Somerville, in a taxi.

The woman, who gave the name of Anna Dorcigian, complained of injuries to her back and cuts about the hand. She is alleged to have been riding in a car driven by Paul Dorcigian of the Somerville address. The car which collided with the Dorcigian machine was a roadster and operated by an Elevated official whose name was not disclosed.

According to the police the one-man car, operated by Walker, came along and bumped the stalled automobiles with considerable force.

LONGSHOREMEN ACCEPT 5 CENTS AN HOUR RAISE

New York, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—Longshoremen of the North Atlantic district voted today to accept the offer of the steamship owners granting them a five cents an hour wage increase, thus averting a strike. The vote was not unanimous.

The checkers' local will vote on the offer tonight. The checkers have been offered a raise from $6 to $6.50 a day. They had asked for $7.

Trailing Bogus 20's

New Bedford, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—Federal inspectors have been called to this city to inquire into the circulation of spurious $20 Federal Reserve notes among New Bedford merchants.

The horse-hair

Living Room
Executed in and by Good Housekeeping Studio

THE horse-hair sofa is in the attic—and with it, the wax fruit under the glass, the what-nots, and many another hideousity, as well as the stuffy ideas that tolerated them. And in their place, in the countless charming homes throughout the width and breadth of the country, there are delightful pieces of furniture, colorful draperies, and an atmosphere of good taste and charm the gay nineties could not boast.

Today a new spirit has entered the home. Comfort is demanded as a matter of course, but with it there must be charm, ease of living, but above all—beauty. For beauty has found its place in the everyday affairs of life

Women not only look for it but demand it—in all that they wear, and in all that they use, and more and more in the furnishing of their houses, and their manner of living.

Standards are higher. Not alone of comfort, which the marvels of machinery and mechanics have made possible, but standards of taste.

Small houses are built on the same good lines as large ones. Small rooms are furnished in the same good taste as spacious ones. Simple entertainments are given with the same good form as great ones.

Many influences have brought this about. And none so masterful and far-reaching as the magazines entering the home.

And chief among them—Good Housekeeping. And because it went to the home, not merely to entertain, but to serve, letters by tens of thousands came to Good Housekeeping asking its help and guidance in making the home a more attractive place in which to live.

So through the inspiration of Good Housekeeping Institute, where everything for the kitchen is tested before it is recommended, it seemed but natural to build a room, or group of rooms, the better to tell how it was done. To test, as it were, a theory, before giving it as a fact.

So—years ago—the Studio came into being.

Step by step it grew with the growing demand for its aid from the alive, modern woman.

sofa is in the attic

TODAY, through the cooperation of American manufacturers whose merchandise meets our standard of excellence, a new room, or group of rooms, is built each month by the Studio, finished and furnished as completely as if it were to be lived in.

It is then illustrated in the magazine with a descriptive article. The rooms we illustrate here are a few among the many—every sort of room from a formal living room to a nursery.

Having served the purpose of helpfulness to the million and a half who read of the Studio's work, and the thousands who come to see it, the rooms are then torn down and others take their place, showing new and different ideas of modern living.

This is done every month under the supervision of its Director, a consultant architect and expert decorators, to show in an authoritative way not only how to make livable, charming rooms, but how to do it with the products—named in the magazine article—of the great industries of America.

The response is two-fold. The reader on the one hand is eager to do in her own home what the Studio has done, as she feels an assurance of success. The manufacturer on the other hand is no less eager to put before her, through the Studio, the best he produces.

Building materials of every sort; paint, paper and panelling; furniture; textiles; and all the other attractive things that make a room livable, are among the articles used by the Studio, and recommended.

Through the reader correspondence alone manufacturers' products have been recommended 15,229 times to women groping for information.

The reader, in addition to using the magazine articles as a guide, philosopher and friend, buys in amazing numbers the folios the Studio publishes, not alone on the rooms illustrated but on the various phases of decorating—a straw, but it shows which way the wind blows.

The letters answered, and the sale of such folios, in this department alone run into the hundreds of thousands—285,752 to be exact—and now a new color chart, a subject of great interest, is piling up the influence!

Good Housekeeping Studio

Colonial Bedroom
Executed in and by Good Housekeeping Studio

It is a matter of no little satisfaction that the purposes of the Studio have been so consistently carried out as to gain the commendation of a host of manufacturers whose future is inevitably allied with the good taste and intelligent standards of the American home. In 1926 and again, thus far in 1927, Good Housekeeping has carried more advertising in the classification of furnishing and decoration than any other monthly publication in the women's field.

While Good Housekeeping Studio is but one department of the magazine's activities, it is typical of the authoritativeness and the completeness which are present in every phase of the magazine's service to its readers. In its fiction, its fashions, its illustrations and its many other departments of home life, the same standards of excellence maintain.

The October issue is now on sale. If you are not already among the million and a half who have bought their copies, get one today and realize for yourself the unusual importance of these services.

HOSPITALITY IS THE REAL TEST OF THE MEAL

Here's Good Recipe

THE competent hostess is never at a loss to provide refreshment for her guests. No matter how impromptu the party may be, or how unexpected the arrival of the guests, somehow she is always ready for them. The woman who spends hours planning tasty dishes to cap the climax of an evening's fun gains lots of satisfaction from a sense of having prepared a delightful repast. But all too often she is too tired to really enjoy her guests. Take, on the other hand, the woman who believes in short cuts to hospitable entertainment. Her dishes are novel but simple and the time she might spend on an elaborate menu is being used for rest or recreation.

One of the most successful entertainers I know has earned for herself the title of the "perfect hostess." All of her little parties have the air of delightful informality dear to the heart of the unexpected guest. They love to have her hand out aprons and spoons and let them all come to the kitchen and have a "hand" in the concoction of the "eats." Naturally only the simplest of dishes will stand for the interference of so many cooks.

She gave me the simple recipe for one of her popular and original combinations and I am passing it along to you, with illustrated instructions for the making.

Warm small crisp salty crackers in the oven, leaving the door open. Warm peanut butter so that it will spread easily, or if you like, work ½ cup of hot water into the peanut butter until it is of a consistency to pour easily. Spread or pour the peanut butter on the crackers after removing them from the oven. Sprinkle with small pieces of hot crisp bacon chips. Serve warm with a snappy iced drink, or hot coffee.

Dandy as an appetizer, too, or when just a bite and sip is all that's necessary to give a note of hospitality to even the most casual gathering.

Economical at Dinner

FOR the ever popular, economical one-piece dinner, try this interesting dish:

STUFFED AND STEWED STEAK—Choose a piece of steak from the round, about one pound and one-half in weight. Or a flank steak, or a large skirt steak may be used. Pound the meat as flat as possible with a wooden mallet, or a wooden potato masher; spread with the following stuffing: Press a generous cup of stale bread crumbs out of hot water, and while hot mix with a quarter of a cup of chopped suet, two ounces of chopped, cooked ham, one-fourth tsp. of pepper, a wee dash of cayenne, and one beaten egg.

When the stuffing is evenly spread on the steak, roll it up, tie securely with string and cook in hot stock, barely to cover, for two hours, at not more than 180 deg. F. With the steak cook four young carrots and a few mushrooms.

Serve on a hot dish, thicken the stock with two tbsp. of flour, flavor with tomato catsup, and pour over the steak on the platter.

Serve with potato salad, with sliced oranges and bananas and macaroons for follow-up.

Drop Cooky Is Good

CAN'T you just smell them—golden brown, delicate drop cookies, fresh from the oven? With a puffy little raisin or a nut meat stuck in the centre. Doesn't it fairly make your mouth water? They're delightful for the informal party or the box luncheon. Made by my own favorite recipe, they are always a success.

Drop Cookies—One-half cup butter, ½ cup granulated sugar, grated rind 1 lemon, 3 tbsp. orange syrup, ½ cup chopped nuts, 1 cup honey, 3¼ cups pastry flour, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. baking soda, ½ cup chopped raisins.

Cream butter, beat in sugar, egg yolks, lemon rind and orange syrup. Sift together the flour, soda and salt, add chopped raisins and nuts. Beat alternately with the honey into the first mixture. Fold in egg whites beaten stiff, and drop by good sized tablespoonfuls on an oiled pan. Keep the cookies two inches apart. Place a whole raisin in the middle of each and bake twelve minutes in a moderately hot oven, 350 to 375 deg. F.

Col. Lindbergh Has a Real Appetite

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh attacks his morning meal with all the zest you'd expect, according to a report in the Des Moines Register during his western trip recently. From the Hotel Fort Des Moines comes word that the flier's 9 o'clock breakfast began with orange juice and puffed wheat and included scrambled eggs, buttered toast.

Waiters at the banquet given in his honor at the same hotel kept an eye on his plate and it's their opinion that Lindy thinks a banquet is a good place to eat rather than talk. They say he concentrated on his food while others were conversing, and his plate would have made a model Exhibit A during the Hoover Food Administration.

Mrs. Allen's boys play the dirt right into their clothes!

But Chipso soaks it out again!

Mrs. W. S. Allen of Caribou, Me., admits that when she first saw the "thin white flakes" of Chipso she was a "doubting Thomas."

"I said to myself," she writes to us, "'this will be fine for table linens, sheets and things like that, but it will never take the dirt out of boys' clothes!'"

So she deliberately tested Chipso! She followed the directions on the Chipso box, choosing the easiest, quickest way of tub-washing there is. She soaked her clothes clean. Her letter explains the Chipso way:

"I put the flakes in the tub and turned on the hot water. It became a mass of lovely suds! Then I thought I would see what soaking would do. So I let the clothes stand about 25 minutes. When I began to squeeze the sudsy water through and through the clothes with my hands, the suds had loosened the dirt—and it floated away! Whenever I came to a soiled cuff or neck-band I rubbed it between my hands. Two rinsings, and everything was clean and sweet!"

Chipso is the soap-partner of women who want to get things thoroughly clean in the simplest way, so they can have more time for themselves! Chipso, for instance, makes dishwashing one-third quicker! Try putting your dishes in Chipso suds before you dry and wipe the glass and silver. Do the same thing with the utensils while you are drying the china. This soaks off the grease, sparing your hands from roughening work.

Chipso is thrifty! A clothes-washing costs about 5 cents—a whole day's dishwashing takes less than a penny's worth.

MARTHA LEE COOKING SCHOOL ON OCTOBER 4-7

Mrs. Crabtree to Give Lectures Daily

I AM going to repeat today the announcement of the good news of the Martha Lee Cooking School which will be held October 4, 5, 6 and 7 in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Statler for the benefit of New England housewives,

This is really another of my treasured dreams come true—an opportunity to personally meet actually thousands of my reader-friends in a series of helpful and interesting cooking classes.

And can you think of a more wonderful place to hold the Martha Lee Cooking School than the wonderful new Statler ballroom? It is so centrally convenient, and, with its large stage, so ideally adapted to lectures and demonstrations Some of the most important functions in Boston have been held in the Statler ballroom, and I surely do feel that we are fortunate in having such an ideal setting for our school.

I'm especially fortunate, too, in being able to secure as an assistant and lecturer Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree, one of America's foremost culinary experts, who will lecture and demonstrate new dishes every day of the school.

From Tuesday, October 4, through Friday, October 7, we will be at home in the Statler ballroom to every housekeeper in New England, and in the kitchen which is being installed on the stage, will demonstrate new dishes, plan menus and discuss new methods of cookery.

Lectures will be given on some of the newest phases of home making, with special advice on budgeting, interesting new theories on diet and health. Many new, helpful modern appliances will be demonstrated—in fact, the Statler ballroom will for four happy days be turned into headquarters for all kinds of home making information.

The Martha Lee Cooking School will be open to the public between the hours of 2:30 and 4:30 from October 4 to October 7, but to take care of the crowds the doors will open at 1:30. Mrs. Crabtree will speak daily, and I will be on hand to take advantage of this long-hoped-for opportunity to talk to you all again.

There will be cookery demonstrations, and following each lecture a free distribution of the printed recipes of the dishes cooked that day, as well as other good things that I can only hint of here.

I do hope that each and every one of you will take this as a personal invitation to be present on one or all of these four days—October 4, 5, 6 and 7. Admission will be by coupons, the first of which will be published in the Boston Evening American of Saturday, Oct. 1. The next coupon will appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser of Oct. 2, and will be repeated in the Evening American Oct. 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7.

I want to extend a personal invitation to every woman and girl in New England to attend these classes and bring to them her own special household problems—whether you are an experienced housekeeper alert for helpful short cuts to household efficiency, a kitchenette cook, bride, or domestic science student.

I know that you will find many things of interest and help at these classes. For instance, there will be special lectures on low cost buying for homemakers who must watch their market basket expenditures closely, helpful talks on menu planning, new pointers on how to plan festive parties, for hostesses who pride themselves on smart luncheons and attractive dinners, suggestions on how to decorate the table, how to serve the guests.

There will be discussions of the new styles in table linens, the new glass and chinaware. All questions on these and other subjects bothering the homemaker will be fully answered.

The recipes—Martha's own—are clear, tried and true; the demonstrations simple and easily seen by every one in the audience, and Mrs. Crabtree's lectures will be worth coming many a mile to hear. She has lectured before many of the most prominent women's clubs in this country, and speaks with authority on the scientific, as well as the practical side of dietetics and home economics and helps for every-day problems of homemakers.

Good cooking and good health go hand in hand, we all know, but what we are going to demonstrate is that the well-fed family is not always the one with the largest grocery bill. Simple foods, well chosen and nicely served, helpful recipes, interesting gifts—all these will be features of the Martha Lee Cooking School at the Hotel Statler, October 4, 5, 6 and 7, from 2:30 to 4:30 daily.

Won't you make up your mind right now that you will be one of the 1,800 ladies that the Statler ballroom will accommodate on one or all of these dates?

Soup and Success

SCIENCE is teaching us that good health depends mostly on a few simple fundamental rules, certain to bring the wished-for results, if only—and this is the all-important fact—if only these simple rules are followed habitually from day to day. Sleep, exercise, the open air, the right kind of food!

Eating soups and keeping well go hand in hand. Soup is one of the foods the experts tell us should be eaten every day. Soup is a hot liquid food which has a special place and usefulness in the daily diet, well recognized by the authorities.

So do not think of soup as simply a delicious dish to be served or omitted as your fancy pleases. For soup belongs in the daily diet, and should be eaten regularly, not just occasionally, because it offers to your appetite a variety of tempting and delightful flavors you cannot get in any other food, stimulates the appetite, arouses the desire for food and not only satisfies you but makes you keen for your other food as well.

Soup causes the digestive juices to flow more freely, too, and this has a favorable effect both on appetite and digestion. The food is assimilated into the body tissues more thoroughly.

Let no day go by without its plateful of hot, nourishing, delicious soup. You will enjoy it so much and it will do you so much good. So easy and convenient, too, with all the tasty prepared soups to choose from at your neighborhood grocers.

Read what they say about White Rose Bread

LEADING domestic science teachers have tested White Rose Bread—studied its recipe—compared it with other loaves. Read what they say about this loaf. Their statistics are backed by years of experience and knowledge of baking that makes them especially valuable.

A Consultant in Dietetics, known from coast to coast reports, "Except for the crust which shows that it is a wrapped bread, I might easily have mistaken it for a home-made bread."

The Director of Home Economics of one of the largest Universities says, "No loaf I know compares with it."

The Director of Household Arts in a famous University says, "It compares more favorably with home-made than any loaf I know."

Thirty-five students of cookery agree—"This is the perfect loaf of baker's bread."

A nationally known food expert states, "Only once before during a period of fifteen years of constant application to food study, have I been able to render so favorable a report as this."

WHITE ROSE repays all the skill lavished upon it. The unusually rich recipe, worked out with the help of these food specialists and dietitians, the extra careful baking—every creamy, delicious slice of White Rose Bread bears witness to them.

If you haven't yet had the delight of serving White Rose Bread, ask your grocer for it today. You'll notice the difference with your very first taste.

Tea Rooms Made a Fortune for Miss Frese

IN the Fifth Avenue district of New York are three famous tea rooms—the Colonia and two Vanity Fairs. All have been developed by Miss Ida L. Frese, who instituted in America the modern tea room idea of superlative food and service. Two are in buildings which she owns.

That tea room idea is to serve the daintiest foods which care and skill can offer. Women go there largely to discover new delights for their home tables. Miss Frese, among other things, has a farm of her own to supply them.

One conspicuous feature in a tea room is the coffee. If that is not exquisite, other things lose their glamour. So Miss Frese, in all her famous tea rooms, serves La Touraine Coffee alone.

So in many of the finest hotels. In all Statler Hotels, for instance, famous for super-service. In the newest Boston Hotels, the Ritz-Carlton, the Kenmore and Elks. In famous inns which motorists talk about. In gorgeous restaurants, like the Palace of Gold in New York. On extra-fare trains and other dining places patronized by connoisseurs.

The famous Post Tavern in Battle Creek serves La Touraine alone. So do all leading hotels which cater to furniture buyers—the Pantlind and Morton in Grand Rapids, the American Furniture Mart in Chicago.

When experts everywhere so favor one coffee, that coffee deserves a place in your home. It involves no extra cost. Don't you feel that you and your people might as well have the best?

Why they use La Touraine Coffee

Because it holds the top place in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees.

Because experts regard it the supreme result of 237 years of coffee development.

Because the four finest coffees that grow are combined in this blend. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Three of them cost 50% more than ordinary coffees. One is so rare that only 30,000 bags are grown yearly.

Because the blend is exclusive and secret. No other blend resembles it. Experts spent twenty years in perfecting this ideal flavor and aroma.

Because E. J. Butler, the noted coffee expert, personally tests and selects every coffee in this blend.

Because La Touraine, despite its supreme quality, costs no more than other high-grade coffees.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Smart Set's Costumes of Brilliant Hue Emphasize Arrival of Autumnal Season

IRREFUTABLE SIGNS OF AUTUMN'S ARRIVAL ABOUND. ONE senses Nature's mood of riotous color as the maple's scarlet flashes from the hillside. Or as a splash of heather shading from pale lilac to rich purple, meets the eye; or as the town quickens into life, and, most definitely, as madame and mademoiselle of the smart set appear on the fashionable thoroughfares in le dernier cri of Autumn's mode. Summer's simplicity gives way to Autumn's richness, and pleasing is the change. There's something particularly satisfying to the eye in Autumn's mode and fabric the deep richness of velvet and satin, the jaunty swing of a fur scarf; the sleek snug chapeau, with dazzling ornament. In the town's newest and smartest hostelry for luncheon or for tea one sees feminine Boston in true Autumnal chic.

MRS. BOYLSTON ADAMS BEAL, MEETING FRIENDS FOR LUNCHEON of a Saturday, was the patrician lady attired in quiet elegance and smart to a degrese. Her frock was black and her pearls were lustrous. Of Mrs. Beal it may be said she is always perfectly turned out, a decoration to the tea hour or the opera box. Mrs. Bryce J. Allan, stepping from her sleek motor, to transact a bit of business down town, is ever so distinctive in her array of dull black. Soft crepes and the slimmest of high heeled shoes, a pearl necklet and accessories of the simplicity that is so costly, such is Mrs. Allan's costume.

IN ALL PROBABILITY MRS. ALLAN WILL SPEND THE WINTER abroad, in a favorite spot on the Continent; such is her usual custom. Mrs. Robert Treat Paine is another matron strongly addicted to the black costume designedly simple and smartly accented, either with the lustre of pearls or the flash of a diamond ornament. Sipping tea at the Ritz, Mrs. Paine was the acme of elegance in her satin frock against which gleamed a gardenia cluster. The omnipresent pearls were perfectly matched in a double strand, and a brilliant ornament flashed against the dull black of her chapeau. For Mrs. Clarence Ransome Edwards it is but a step from her "shop" to luncheon at the Ritz with an intimate or two. She and Mrs. Timothee Adamowski (just back from Europe) are as inseparable at the Soldiers' Shop where they serve each morning, as during their luncheon relaxation. Mrs. Edwards in shining black satin and Mrs. Adamowski in black and white were immensely pleasant to look upon.

THE SOLDIERS' SHOP HAS ENJOYED A MOST SATISFACTORY return from its Summer caravan sales a condition delighting Mrs. Edwards beyond words and filling the hearts of the disabled workers with joy. Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell motors to town from Readville wearing an ensemble of leaf brown; a soft and tender color particularly becoming to this tall and slender matron, who so cleverly directs the junior supper dances each Winter. Mrs. Hallowell's chapeau folded snugly about her head like an Autumn leaf and her frock from top to toe she wore the same woodsy color.

MISS DOROTHY CORNISH
This talented member of the Junior League is home after a Summer spent abroad.

MRS. J. LEWIS BREMER DESISTS SUFFICIENTLY LONG FROM her tennis round to shop a bit along the fashionable thoroughfares. In town on this pleasant round recently she was wearing a hat of maple red and a wrap that for color borrowed a bit of the same brilliant shade to mingle with brown of rust red richness. Mrs. Bremer plays tennis all up and down the north and south shore. No important tournament goes on without her attendance. I saw Miss Betty Barrell, for whom one of the season's largest bud parties will be given, dashing into a smart hotel wearing a satin frock and wide black hat done in the picturesque manner and decidedly becoming to this golden haired girl. Miss Barrell came home from Paris not so very long ago with the most fetching wardrobe imaginable. That it contained something unusually lovely for the coming out, is perfectly safe to assume.

OF COURSE, MRS. HARRIS LIVERMORE'S costumes, whether for day or evening, are unusual and interesting. For the morning's shopping tour I glimpsed her wearing a smart effect of dark blue dashingly designed with dahlia red embroidery, her chapeau was small and vividly tinted, and a slender scarf of fox swung in jaunt finish. Mrs. Livermore's daughter, Miss Elizabeth Livermore, is one of the specially attractive debutantes for whom wise parents and adoring friends have arranged a brilliant round of entertaining.

MISS LOUISE AND MISS PRISCILLA WATERMAN, twin-like appear in similar costumes with fine effect. Their hats emphasized the Autumn's deep red and their frocks carried out most harmoniously the rich color suggestion. Miss Barbara Welch lunching at the Ritz looked out upon the fashionable company from beneath the becoming brim of a wide velvet hat, and her frock was of velvet, also. Miss Welch belongs still to the sub-debuntante set and has rich promise of a wide popularity when the all important Winter arrives.

SAFETY MOVE AFTER THREE ARE KILLED

To relieve the traffic congestion on Lafayette street, Salem, where so far this year there have been sixteen accidents and three deaths, the city is planning to build a $100,000 highway from the present Canal street to Loring avenue, speakers today told the public utilities commission.

They asked that the commission approve the establishment of a grade crossing over the Salem-Marblehead branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad, in connection with the proposed undertaking.

The LIFE and LETTERS of WOODROW WILSON

RAY STANNARD BAKER.

Boyhood Amid War Ordeal Left Its Mark; Privation Felt by His Family

The Boston Evening American begins today the publication of an absorbing story of the life of Woodrow Wilson by Ray Stannard Baker. The story will appear in this paper each weekday and on Sunday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. The first instalment appeared in the latter paper yesterday.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

During the most impressionable years of Woodrow Wilson's life, his people, his own town, his family itself, were passing through that ordeal of fire and misery which was the Civil War. He was a few months beyond eight years old when Lee surrendered; he was fourteen when the family left Augusta.

For the next three years, until he went off at seventeen to college, he was living in Columbia, S. C., where the effects of the war had been even more terrible and the suffering and hatred bitterer. More than twelve years of his life, therefore, were spent among the convulsions of a society immediately at war or in the exhaustion that followed upon defeat.

They were years crowded with mighty events—the greatest war the nation had ever known—greater than any the world had seen since the time of Napoleon or was to see again until 1914, when the child of Augusta had become President at Washington.

It is always difficult to decide how deep a mark such events, such an atmosphere, leave upon the spirit of a child. How far does he become the object he looks upon? How far does the object become part of him "for the day, or a certain part of the day, or for many years, or for stretching cycles of years?"

He was a shy, thoughtful, imaginative boy, dwelling much in his own dreams. While he lived in a peculiarly sheltered home, he must have been conscious daily of the strain and passion and suffering that grew as the war deepened for he had the visible evidences of them constantly before his eyes.

They provided that unconscious early conditioning of childhood upon which modern psychology lays so much stress. He himself once said that "a boy never gets over his boyhood and never can change those subtle influences which have become part of him, that were bred in him when he was a child."

HIS WORLD WAR TORN.

In the youth of every high-tempered, sensitive, poetic nature there is the struggle between the deep inner life, with its love of quiet things, and thought and visions, and the compulsions of a rough and unreasonable outer world.

In the boy Tommy's life this was emphasized on the one hand by the unusual intensity of his nature—intensity from beginning to end was the mark of his personality—and by the extreme wildness, ugliness, hatred, suffering of the outer world that immediately surrounded, pressed upon, dominated all his early life.

It was a world at war, disordered, lawless, leaderless, a world so torn with evil passions that there was no place where a man might think his thoughts in quietude, might create beautiful things, might live in comeliness and courtesy.

It was a world that cried out to be put to rights with no one to put it to rights. Must one stop thinking and creating to restore order that he might have space and peace to think again? To the end of his life Woodrow Wilson was to know this struggle, was to be goaded by such questioning.

At the outbreak of the Civil War Augusta became one of the principal centers of Confederate industrial activity. The United States Arsenal already an institution of the town, was seized by Southern forces and ammunition was produced in large quantities for the Confederate army. Other factories sprang up, and in the wild exuberance of enlistment 2,000 men went as soldiers out of a population of fewer than 10,000 white people.

The boy probably was too young in the early part of the war to have been much impressed by anything save the atmosphere of stress and disturbance, with occasional vivid pictures, as we know, of marching soldiers, or of his father anxiously

JEW NEW YEAR SERVICES OPEN TONIGHT

Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, the most solemn of that ancient race's holiday season, begins at sundown tonight, when thousands of Jews in Greater Boston, New England and the world, lay aside their toil to engage in prayer and contemplation.

This observance is a prelude to Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, a week after the two-day Rosh Hashana.

With the blowing of the historic ram's horn, Jews all over the world will head toward the synagogues to begin observance of the two Holy Days, described as "occasions of spiritual inventory, in which Jews are urged to examine their souls, to take an accounting of their consciences and total up the balance sheets of their spirits."

To the sick and afflicted in the hospitals and to many of the shut-ins, the radio will carry the services. These services will be conducted in nearly every synagogue in Boston and other New England cities. Special arrangements have also been made for services for Jewish soldiers, sailors and marines and the disabled veterans. In the army and navy furloughs will be granted to the men of the faith.

Many Jews will observe Rosh Hashana until sundown tomorrow, but all orthodox Jews will continue their observance until sundown Wednesday.

In many of the synagogues this year the sermons will stress the importance of education. The celebration of holy days continues through Yom Kippur, beginning Oct. 6.

WIFE WILL BE MAYOR WHILE HUBBY IS IN JAIL

Indianapolis, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—Mrs. John L. Duvall, wife of the Indianapolis mayor, was named city controller today, succeeding Claude F. Johnson, who had held the position since September 1. Johnson, who was removed as chief of police a day or two before being made city controller, was made head of the city detective department.

Mayor Duvall was found guilty last week of violating the Corrupt Practices Act during the 1925 election, fined $1,000, sentenced to thirty days imprisonment and denied the right to hold public office for four years. In event of Duvall's resignation Mrs. Duvall as city controller would become the city's chief executive.

Price of Coal Up 25 Cents a Ton as Winter Comes

ADVANCE IS EARLIER IN 1927

The price of coal went up 25 cents a ton today. This is a regular seasonal advance, according to the Boston dealers who announced it, but it comes somewhat earlier than customary.

Under normal conditions the price now established will prevail throughout the Winter—but the coal men are making no promises.

The prices of the important domestic sizes are below those of a year ago, except for buckwheat, the price of which has been boosted by an increasing demand due to the development of heaters built especially to take this low-priced fuel.

Comparative prices follow:

| | 1927. | 1926. |
|---|---|---|
| Furnace | $15.75 | $16.00 |
| Egg | 15.75 | 16.25 |
| Stove | 16.25 | 16.50 |
| Nut | 16.00 | 16.25 |
| Pea | 13.75 | 14.00 |
| Buckwheat | 9.75 | 9.00 |

MISS HAM IS WITNESS AT BLAIR INQUEST

New Bedford, Sept. 26.—Twenty five witnesses, including the parents and the sweetheart of the dead youth, were in District Court today as an inquest began before Judge James P. Doran to determine whether the mysterious death of Gordon S. Blair was an accident or suicide.

Disposition of $55,000 insurance, which young Blair obtained shortly before his death, depends on the decision. The youth, a former Annapolis cadet and Boston wool salesman, died with a bullet wound under his heart two weeks ago.

Miss Geraldine Ham of Milton, Wellesley College graduate, was one of the witnesses summoned. She was known as Blair's sweetheart, although she denied that there was an engagement.

SOUTH END WOMAN IS HELD IN POLYGAMY CASE

Mrs. Florence E. J. Holmes of Massachusetts avenue, South End was in Municipal Court today, charged with polygamy. Walter S. Holmes, said by police to be husband No. 2, was arraigned on a serious charge. Both pleaded not guilty, the woman's case being continued to Thursday with bonds set at $500 while Holmes' complaint was placed on file. Judge Dowd said he believed Holmes to be innocent.

Sergeant Timmins, Division 5, told the court that the woman was married to Ernest Richmond of Sumner street, Lynn, before she married Holmes in Providence more than a year ago. He said police are investigating a third marriage in the case.

RUM SEIZURES INCREASE 15 PER CENT., SAYS DORAN

Washington, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—The volume of seizures of breweries liquor and automobiles and the number of prosecutions of prohibition law offenders throughout the country was 13 to 20 per cent. greater during June, July and August than in the similar period of any previous year, Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced today.

Doran declared that general enforcement in the Middle West was improving, with the problem of preventing diversion of industrial alcohol well on its way to a satisfactory enforcement.

QUINCY GIRL HELD AS AUTO SALE FUGITIVE

Miss Margaret Boyd, 19, of Elm street, Quincy, was arraigned in court there today as a fugitive from justice in Florida. She was held in $200 until Saturday.

She was arrested after a telegram from Sheriff Wilder of Bartow, Fla., charged she had bought an auto there, and after making the initial payment, drove the machine north.

THIEVES GET $2,000 IN SUITS IN STORE BREAK

Two hundred men's suits, valued at more than $2,000, were stolen from the store of the New England Clothiers, Inc., No. 80 Summer street, it was discovered today.

WORSTED PLANT CLOSES

Clinton, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—Indefinite suspension of the Carnsdale Worsted Company plant here was announced today, although it was hinted that work might be resumed after a reorganization is completed.

DIVORCES 2, TO TRY AGAIN

The engagement of the Duchess of Westminster to Colonel F. E. Cripps, heir of Lord Parmour, famous Socialist peer, has been announced in London. He will be her third husband. After she divorced Lieut. G. R. F. Rowley she married the Duke. They were divorced two years ago. The Duchess visited America as a member of the Prince of Wales' party three years ago. The Duchess is the daughter of Sir William Nelson, the "Beef King" of Great Britain.

CHAPMAN'S PAL IS HUNTED IN P. O. ROBBERY

Providence, Sept. 26.—A former "pal" of the hanged desperado Gerald Chapman, and two other men were being sought today in southeastern Massachusetts towns near this city by Federal detectives running down the perpetrators of the $260,000 Pawtucket postoffice robbery of January 21, [illegible]

Linked with the Federal agents in the hunt are State police of Rhode Island and Massachusetts together with local police of more than a score of cities and towns who believe that the postoffice robbers or their associates are responsible for a long series of crimes in this vicinity.

The Federal Grand Jury meeting October 5 will be asked to return indictments in the Pawtucket crime, officials said.

Arrest of "Pawtucket" [illegible] Connelly, Daniel McCarthy, [illegible] "Beanie" Kelsner and Mrs. [illegible]etta Gallagher Savage has [illegible] the authorities to [illegible] which are expected to lead to [illegible] arrests soon.

McCarthy was the last arrested. Trapped in an Att[illegible] which was believed to be headquarters of a rum-running clique, he was identified, according to the police, as the "Beanie" K[illegible] of the Savage gang. His wife is said to be Mrs. Savage's sister.

Federal agents later learned that they did not link Kelsner or McCarthy, with the postoffice robbery, but were searching for three men who are said to have helped Connelly in that crime, one of them a man who was "trained" under the notorious Chapman.

McCarthy is at present held in Attleboro on the charge of larceny of an automobile and possession of liquor for sale, and Providence inspectors declare they will try to extradite him.

Connelly is held in $[illegible] bail on the direct charge of participating in the Pawtucket postoffice hold up. Mrs. Savage, wife of George ("Red") Savage, reputed gang-leader, is held on the charge of possessing burglars' tools.

NEW FORD LINE MODELS SOON TO APPEAR

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2[illegible].—Although no specifications as to what the new [illegible] of Ford [illegible] were mentioned Henry Ford [illegible] ed that the gigantic problem of planning [illegible] line and [illegible] a new line of vehicles is [illegible] completed and that it won't be long now [illegible] they will be ready for marketing.

[illegible] expected to [illegible] the [illegible] other Ford [illegible], he said.

Ford's Plan to Build Cars to Capture French Trade

Paris, Sept. 26.—Henry Ford is planning to capture the French automobile market. He will shortly start building in his Bordeaux factory a new model to sell at a considerably lower price than the cheapest French made car.

The machine will be entirely of French manufacture by French workmen. Concern is being felt by French automobile manufacturers who hear that the new car will sell at between ten and fifteen thousand francs. The cheapest French car costs 16,000 francs.

Woman Editor Arrested

Alfred, Me., Sept. 26 (A.P.).—I. N. Ferris, proprietor, and his wife Laura N. Ferris, editor of the Old Orchard News, were arrested today following an indictment for an alleged printed attack on F. I. Luce, chairman of the board of selectmen.

ATTACKER OF WOMAN HUNTED

Bar Mills, Me., Sept. 26 (I.N.S.).—Donda, noted police dog of Lewiston, led a posse of 200 enraged citizens over an eight-mile stretch of territory today in one of the most spectacular man hunts ever engaged in in this section.

A stranger who knocked down two children and later attacked Mrs. Clifford Wallace, 42, was sought. Mrs. Wallace bravely fought the man and fled, badly bruised [illegible]

Berlin Matrons Won Over by Isadora

(Fred Toye, of the Boston Evening American staff, was an intimate friend of Isadora Duncan for seventeen years and for seven years he directed her theatrical appearances in this country and Europe. Here is the tenth installment of his splendidly told story of her unparalleled life.)

THE LIFE AND LOVES OF ISADORA DUNCAN,

By FRED TOYE.

Chapter 10.

FILLED with a vision of her dance as a new expression of art, and without any clear idea of the proper manner of getting it before an understanding public, Isadora's thoughts turned naturally to Berlin, the great art center of Europe of the early 1900's.

The girl had not yet arrived at a complete appreciation of her own utter independence of all other persons. She still clung to the conventional notions that all artists are filled with a passion for art in all its forms. She had not yet learned of the narrowness of the painter and the musician and the sculptor and the poet who scorn all other art forms except their own.

In a long career, she was to find a scant half-dozen great souls inspired like herself with the idea of the universality of all the arts.

Rodin was one of these great spirits who understood the dancer in later years. Carriere was another. So was Bourdelle, to a degree. Likewise Duse and Frau Cosima Wagner.

In the same conventional manner, Isadora looked upon the world of society as her natural audience, and the daughters of the aristocracy as the natural inheritors of her art. Bitter disappointment was to teach her how little the high and mighty of the land could penetrate into her

ANOTHER ONE ARRIVES

N. E. Mixed Foursomes Top Last Week of Golf

By BILL GRIMES.

When the final scores at Albemarle and Ould Newbury have been posted late next Saturday afternoon, the curtain will descend on the 1927 open handicap medal play season.

The New England Mixed Foursome championships will be decided at Weston and the Albemarle Golf Club will be the scene of the feature attractions of the week.

The Boston Newspapermen's Golf Association is staging its annual "blow out" at President Henry J. Nichols' lay out today and the Newtonville club is holding its two day open handicap medal play tournament on Friday and Saturday.

In the past the Albemarle open has always enjoyed record breaking fields. Last year, with the Walter Hagen-Francis Ouimet exhibition match at Sandy Burr as a counter attraction, Albemarle attracted a field of more than 200. If the weatherman has a heart and serves up some sunshine for Friday and Saturday, the all time record of 336, which has been held by the Hatherly Country Club for years, is in danger.

No circus press agent ever billed a town more e[illegible] than Secretary Bill Harna has "three sheeted" the coming Albemarle open. As added inducement Albemarle has divided the field into four classes, scratch to 9, 10 to 14 15 to 20, 21 to 24 There will be gross and net prizes offered for each class, along with the usual special trophies.

AMATEUR IN PRO PLAY.

While the "Fourth Estaters" are cavorting around Albemarle and some of the members of the New England Professional Golfers' Organization are engaged in an amateur pro tournament down in Hartford, Conn, the first of the three mixed foursome events of the week will be played at Sandy Burr.

Although the "Burr" is a difficult course for this style of play, there should be a fine field contesting for President Gus White has been promoting interest in this event for weeks.

The qualifying round for the New England Mixed Foursome championships will be played tomorrow. As was the case last season, the entry list is small but there are some fast teams out in quest of the title, which is now held by Mrs. J. H. Dow and Parker W. Whittemore.

Miss Ruth Batcheller and Joe Lynch will prove a strong combination, judging from the fine calibre of golf they have been playing Miss Batcheller was a finalist at Belmont Spring last season, when she teamed with William F. McPhail of Norfolk

LARGE FOURSOME FIELD.

Although the first and second rounds of match play will be on at Weston Wednesday, the Woodland Golf Club has scheduled an open mixed foursome for that day.

Woodland has one of the best courses in this section for mixed foursome play, and it will not be surprising if the [illegible] of the season plays the Auburndale course on Wednesday

The third Autumn tournament of the Women's Golf Association of Boston will be played on Thursday and the closing attraction will be the Albemarle and Ould Newbury opens on Friday and Saturday.

All Sports In Action at Harvard

Although somewhat eclipsed by the doings of the Crimson football team, four other Harvard sports teams will make their debut this afternoon. Crew Soccer, Fall track, and Freshman football are the quartet which receive their baptism today.

Crew takes the cake of the four. Ed Brown whose initial crew defeated Yale for the first time in six years, will start his second year as head mentor. Brown faces no easy task as the entire bow of his winning crew is shot to pieces by graduation.

Fifty or more soccer candidates will greet Jack Kershaw, Harvard's new soccer coach. Kershaw, like Brown, has his hands full.

Coach Eddie Farrell is on the hot foot again and has issued a call for track candidates.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"GENE TUNNEY was world's heavyweight champion for a year before the public recognized his greatness as a fighting man," said Mr. Boston as he breezed into the sporting department today. "I remember the night back in Philadelphia when Gene was crowned king of his boxing class," went on the veteran. "As the rain-soaked mob left the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, almost everybody declared that Jack Delaney could knock out either Tunney or Dempsey. Delaney had just beaten Paul Berlenbach and was at the crest of his wave of popularity.

"Tunney was ridiculed from one part of the country to the other as a joke champion. He kept silent in the face of criticism and attended to his business which was boxing. He lived the kind of life necessary if one is to keep at the head of the heavyweight division.

"Gene sat in at the Yankee Stadium last May, the night Jack Sharkey knocked out Jim Maloney. After the contest, he announced he would start training immediately. At the time he felt he would have to defend his title against Sharkey. He didn't believe Dempsey would attempt a come back, and even if he did he thought Sharkey would beat him.

"For three months Tunney trained carefully at Speculator Lake, New York. He was referred to as the 'Hermit of Speculator' as Dempsey and Sharkey took the centre of the fistic stage in New York. The champion received scant attention from the press or the public.

"Gene bitterly opposed Rickard staging the Dempsey-Sharkey bout. Not that he feared either man, but because he was afraid that it would either be an uninteresting contest, or the winner would meet with an injury which would have prevented a championship contest this year.

"WHEN Dempsey won over Sharkey, Tunney trained all the harder. He is a keen student of boxing, and, knowing Dempsey's style, felt he could repeat the triumph he scored at Philadelphia.

"Gene never stands up and swaps blows with Dempsey. He knows that such a line of campaign would be ring suicide. Instead he keeps circling the ring, making the old champion miss, and nailing him with left and right punches to the head when the openings present themselves.

"Tunney punched harder with his right to the jaw at Chicago than he did at Philadelphia. Dempsey's open letter got under Gene's skin and he wanted to knock Jack out.

"It was short, deadly right hand punches to the head which pricked the Dempsey victory bubble in the seventh round. When Tunney got up after the knockdown, he kept circling the ring, Dempsey chasing him. The old champion was out of position most of the time, unable to get over a winning punch. Now and then Tunney would stop his retreat and suddenly step in and cross a sharp right hander to the jaw. These short right handers took what fire there was left out of Dempsey.

"In the eighth round, Tunney dropped Dempsey to the canvas with one of these short right handers. The Tiger came up fighting and missed with two terrific left hooks to the jaw, either one of which, if they had landed, would have given him a victory.

"During the last two frames, Tunney hit Dempsey at will and had him groggy at the final bell.

"THE DEMPSEY ballyhoo indicates that the old champion intends to return to the pugilistic wars next year. He will probably wait for the outdoor season when he will tackle Jack Sharkey or whoever comes out on top in the next heavyweight elimination tournament. Sharkey, Paulino, Scott and Heeney are the men Rickard is relying upon to pack them in at the Garden during the coming Winter and during the Spring of 1928. It looks now as though next Summer will find Tunney, Sharkey and Dempsey once more battling for the right to be hailed king of the heavyweight class"

FLYNN TO HAIL DEMPSEY AS 'CHAMPION'

Chicago, Sept. 26.—If all his efforts to have the decision in the Tunney-Dempsey bout reversed fail, Manager Leo P. Flynn will proclaim Tiger Jack champion by the "outlaw route."

That is, he will urge that the general public accept Dempsey as the champion despite the rulings of the referee and judges of the fight and the Illinois Boxing Commission.

Before making such a move, however, Flynn will file a request signed by Dempsey with the Illinois ring board, asking that the decision be reversed and Dempsey be declared the winner by a knockout.

That such a protest has been prepared was admitted by Flynn just before Dempsey, Promoter Tex Rickard and a party of friends left for New York

Flynn made public the contents of a telegram which he said Dempsey had dispatched to the Boxing Commission. It read.

"My manager Leo P. Flynn, and myself are preparing a formal letter which will arrive at your offices Tuesday morning asking you to reverse the decision and declare Jack Dempsey the winner by a knockout over Gene Tunney.

(Signed) Jack Dempsey."

That the petition will fall on deaf ears was indicated by John C. Reigheimer, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, who declared that as far as the commission is concerned, the fight and the decision are closed issues.

Flynn admitted he had little hope of obtaining a reversal at the hands of the State board, but declared it was necessary to be on record in order to proceed with his next move. This, he frankly stated, would be an appeal to the National Board of Boxing Commissioners, with headquarters at Baltimore.

If the National body fails to order the decision reversed, Flynn hinted still another step that suggested the "outlaw" route. It is believed he will proclaim Jack Dempsey the heavyweight champion of the world and trust to public opinion to carry his point.

Dempsey's Title Claim Turned Down by N. Y. Board

New York, Sept. 26 (I N S)—"Gene Tunney is the world's heavyweight champion and the New York Boxing Commission will not recognize Jack Dempsey's claim to the title," said James A. Farley, chairman of the body today.

"We will not entertain any appeal made to us that we set aside the decision of Referee Dave Barry, made in the Chicago ring last Thursday night. Fights are won and lost in the ring, not in the offices of those who control the game."

National Boxing Asso. Backs Illinois Board

New London, Conn, Sept. 26 (A P)—The National Boxing Association will stand behind the Illinois boxing commission on the question of the legality of Gene Tunney's victory over Jack Dempsey at Chicago in the opinion of Thomas E. Donohue of this city, president of the association, and commissioner of boxing in Connecticut.

President Donohue said today that neither Leo P. Flynn or any other recognized representative of Jack Dempsey had notified him of the filing of an official protest with the National association

Five Rehearsals for Horween's 1927 Cast

By TED LYNCH

Coach Arnold Horween, producer and director of the 1927 Crimson pigskin edition, has five dress rehearsals left prior to the first performance of his cast against Vermont next Saturday at the Stadium.

In three of these rehearsals the wardrobe of his cast is bound to be disarranged for the Crimson mentor has ordered a trio of scrimmages this week.

Two of his prima donnas are causing him trouble. The berth of the leading man, the quarterback, still causes worry to the 28-year-old coach. Another part concerning which Horween still is quite leery is at guard. Horween is bound that his show will not be a flop and will scout the chorus this week for two capable substitutes for two stars who have not come up to expectations.

His probable roster for the curtain-raiser will be O'Connell and Prior, ends; Captain Pratt and Clark, tackles; Simonds and Shapiro, guards, Turner, center, Kelly quarterback, and Crosby, Guarnaccia and Moore as backs. Kelly and Shapiro are the headliners whose ability still remains as a question of doubt.

Kelly has that fighting Irish heart but seems to lack the heft of his German ancestors Toward the latter part of last week the Winchester youth seemed to slow up and his handling of the pigskin became unsteady.

In the case of Shapiro, it is not a question of heart nor of weight The biggest man on the squad has been slow in recovering from his stomach injury and has been hard pushed for his berth by Jack Parkinson and Ralph Stewart. Right now the choice leans toward the popular Jewish boy.

Three Local High School Stars Enter Harvard

As the result of their passing the entrance examinations, Harvard University will admit three of the best Greater Boston schoolboy athletes to the freshman class. The trio are: Tommy Gilligan, Newton, Henry Gildea, Boston, and Eddie McGrath of Brookline.

Tommy Gilligan made history on the athletic fields for Newton High and Exeter, playing on the football baseball and hockey teams.

Henry Gildea played centre on the Boston Latin School eleven for two years and was picked for all scholastic honors.

Another all-scholastic star was Eddie McGrathe, who is considered the leading shortstop of this section and a track star of no mean ability.

EAGLES TACKLE DUKE NEXT SATURDAY

The 1927 Boston College football machine, produced by D. Leo Daly, undergoes its first test of the season this week-end. Duke University, one of the so-called minor colleges, will do the testing

Past years have always found B. C. represented by close to championship clubs. An undefeated eleven swept through all opposition last Fall. Really they could have laid claim to the mythical championship of the Eastern colleges.

B. C. followers are optimistic. They feel that Daley, in his first year as coach, will rival Cavanaugh's standard. Daley has never tutored a college squad before but his knowledge of the games is thorough

Ten veterans of last year's undefeated team form the backbone of the starting eleven. Maybe Daley will enter an entire veteran eleven if he makes the expected change of Dower in place of Lenane at right end.

If these boys can do the iron-man stunt B. C. might be at the top of the heap when the curtain rings down at the end of November. But substitutes have been found necessary in the past and this Fall is no exception.

Pirates Look Good

Football in Front

By NICK FLATLEY

PIRATES HAVE EDGE IN WILD DASH TO WIRE

VERY little rest for the wild-eyed sport fan these times. The excitement of the big fight will be far from dead when the steamup for the World Series arrives. Then the large football games come rushing on apace. If it isn't one thing it's another, and the wild-eyed fan breaks his back trying to earn enough to take in all the big ones as they come.

Nick Flatley

The wildest race in National League history is drawing to a close, and the decision may be held off until the very last day. But it looks like Pittsburgh now. The Pirates recovered from a flailing by the Giants, and picked up a Sunday doubleheader for themselves.

That gives them a two game lead with just a week to go. The Pirates have five more games to play, and so have the Cardinals. The New York Giants have six on their schedule. If the Pirates win four out of five from the Cubs and Reds, the Cardinals cannot even tie them. The New York Giants would have to win their entire six with Brooklyn and Phils to wind up even with Pittsburgh if that four out of five stuff went through. Looks good for the Pirates.

In a tight race like this, though, almost anything is likely to happen. The Giants have three games with the Phils and three with the Robins, both down and out clubs. The Pirates have two more with Chicago, which team was in the race theoretically until yesterday's double disaster, and then play three with the Reds. That club is traveling as well as the best right now.

The Cardinals play three with Cincinnati and then a pair with Chicago. A wild finish might get them in the money, if the Corsairs slipped slightly. This kind of a race means a mad last minute rush in the National city that draws the series. With five days to work in, though, the business organization that is a big league ball club nowadays can iron out anything.

THE CUB PITCHERS HAVE SOMETHING TO CHEER ABOUT—THEY WILL NOT HAVE TO FACE BABE RUTH AND GEHRIG.

DEMPSEY WILL TRY AGAIN—FOR A MILLION

THE gods of publicity smile on Tex Rickard. His idol and money magnet, Jack Dempsey, was knocked out of the picture, apparently, by Gene Tunney. But the Illinois rule on knockouts gave the Dempsey backers something to howl about. The echoes of the last battle of the ages will be ringing until the next one is staged.

Jack Dempsey intended to retire, if he was beaten. He announced that the night of the Chicago explosion. But he is changing his mind. He knows from the hubbub and commotion that he can get another half million and more, by heading for a second shot at the crown. He wouldn't be human if he didn't go for it.

Dempsey as a champion is all through. He showed that when he was unable to catch a weakened and dizzy Tunney who was backing away in the seventh. Dempsey will always be a great fighter, though, and pack the old wallop. He has the heart that never quits. His body has slowed up, but the desire and the courage are just as strong as ever.

Jack will pack 'em in, as long as he keeps coming back. Which is, perhaps, the greatest of all considerations. No mortal can turn down a chance for millions, even though he has a few.

A SCRAPPER MAY BE DOWN, BUT NEVER OUT IN CHICAGO.

FOOTBALL HAS CALCIUM FROM HERE IN

FOOTBALL takes the stage this week in this section, to remain directly in the calcium until the snow flurries come drifting in. Boston is interested in the world series, but not in a local manner, not at all. Boston is decidedly interested in native football.

Harvard and Boston College step into competition Saturday, and the boys are anxious to give both elevens the once over. The Horween system, inaugurated at Cambridge a year ago, should get working properly this Fall.

The Eagles, famous for years under Cavanaugh, have Leo Daley now as coach. The new director is smart and knows how to handle athletes. He has a pretty good team as a legacy. The fan wonders what he will do with it.

Boston University is coming along, too. The game the Terriers gave the Army Saturday proves that Robbie has a good football team, one ready to step up to claim a few titles.

The tang in the air calls for the toot of the well known whistle.

RICKARD PLANS ANOTHER HEAVY TOURNAMENT

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

New York, Sept. 26.—Tex Rickard, promoter of the record-smashing Tunney-Dempsey ring extravaganza in Chicago, arrived in New York today from the scene of the battle and declared he will launch another heavyweight elimination series in Madison Square Garden this Winter to determine the logical man for the next big "shot" at the champion, Gene Tunney.

"Jack Dempsey will enter the elimination series if he fully decides he will fight again," said Rickard. "I haven't talked with Dempsey since before the fight."

In Rickard's opinion the public would like to see Dempsey and Tunney clash for the third time. "It's natural," he said.

Rickard beamed his satisfaction over the outcome of the second Tunney-Dempsey fight. He said the "gate" was $2,658,660, or $700,000 bigger than any other fistic show ever staged. In discussing the men from whom Tunney's next opponent would be selected he named these:

Jack Dempsey of Los Angeles, Jack Sharkey of Boston, Paulino Uzcudun of Spain, George Godfrey of Philadelphia, the new "black menace"; Tom Heeney of Australia, Jim Maloney of Boston "and a lot of new boys, not so well known," he added.

Rickard took occasion to repudiate unsubstantiated stories and rumors of the Dempsey-Tunney fight being "in the bag." He said that was "the bunk"—the "usual pack of lies that are bandied about at every big fight."

Rickard said he didn't take a count when Tunney went down in the famous seventh round, but he expressed the belief that the champion could have got up at the count of nine had it been started promptly, "but he would have been in a pretty bad way."

"Will you give Dempsey another chance at Tunney?" he was asked.

"Certainly, if Dempsey enters the elimination series and shows that he deserves it. I know the public would like to see that pair again."

Rickard said the next championship match would probably be staged next Summer. He did not know where. It was too early for that although New York is one of the favorite spots. It is known that Rickard has been throwing out feelers in the direction of England. The Pacific Coast also wants it. Californians who came to Chicago expressed such a wish.

Davis Cup Admitted Without Duty

Paris, Sept. 26 (A.P.).—Tennis enthusiasts of France are to have an opportunity to gaze upon the Davis Cup, emblem of international supremacy in tennis.

When Henri Cochet of the victorious French team landed at Havre with the cup under his arm, customs officials there demanded that the ingduty on it be paid. The welcoming committee had made no provision for this so it was seized by the customs.

Today, however, as the protests of the tennis fans increased, Director-General of Customs Cochrane ordered the trophy admitted duty free. Tomorrow it is to be brought to Paris.

Millis Wants Games

Dr. Reed Discusses the Saving Grace of Repression

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

ALL [illegible] all our ex[illegible] like, the [illegible] have [illegible] victims of [illegible] repression.

Repression is [illegible] which is constantly at work to guard our peace of mind. [illegible] constantly showing us ourselves [illegible] looking glass, and in order to [illegible] the horrible [illegible] as we are, we repress [illegible] into the backs of our minds and try to forget about it.

How many [illegible] now we [illegible] It shows us our [illegible] angles. [illegible] that most of us prefer to forget [illegible] our personality [illegible] what it [illegible]. These [illegible] of ourselves [illegible] are [illegible] pleasant.

When [illegible] is repressed it takes with it a [illegible] other ideas as well that are connected with it and might serve to remind us [illegible]. All tend [illegible] together. This is illustrated when you go out to dinner intending to go on to a show with your friends. You [illegible] for you? I had forgotten the [illegible]."

Now that incident had remained [illegible] until [illegible] brought by [illegible] had found [illegible] to your conscious [illegible].

This is [illegible] something about [illegible] repression. [illegible] if we could [illegible].

Three Minute Trips

By Temp[illegible]anning

NEW GUINEA [illegible] land [illegible] a number of savage tribes [illegible] from each [illegible] the pygmies, others almost giants; while, of course, the majority are of average size. And each tribe has its own language or dialect, each so widely different that it is almost impossible for one tribe to understand another in any but sign language.

Although even the customs and rites of these various tribes differ [illegible] a lesser animal, a possession of the "Great God Man" [illegible] he buys his pig or his cow, or even a tool.

In order to acknowledge the complete domination of her husband, the young bride must crawl on her hands and knees from her home to his.

Another strange idea which the people of New Guinea have, is their complete disregard of what, to us, are two of the most important days of rejoicing. Neither the wedding day nor the day of a child's birth is considered the least bit important and after the simple ceremony of marriage, the lives of the principals continue on their normal course.

LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

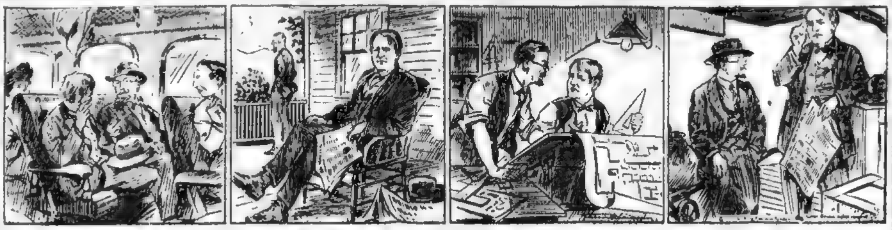
Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



Right on the eve of success Edison's [illegible] mining plant was shut down because great deposits of rich ore, which [illegible] be mined under Edison's costs, had been discovered in Minnesota. Thus nine years of hard work were swept away. But Edison was undaunted. He was already planning the future on his trip [illegible] to Orange.

In 1910 Edison revisited the ore plant. Reminiscing on other days, he remarked. "I never felt better in my life than during the five years I worked here. Hard work, nothing to divert my thoughts, clear air and simple food made my life very pleasant. We learned a great deal. It will be of benefit to someone some time."

When Mr. Mallory, his associate, announced to Edison that he had made financial arrangements for the cement plant he suggested that they hire engineers to lay out the plant. Edison said he was going to do it himself. They went upstairs to the draughting room and within twenty-four hours Edison had every detail laid out to his satisfaction.

Once at a railroad station Edison noticed in a newspaper a high quotation for Edison General Electric stock. He had sold all his at a low price and he asked Mr. Mallory: "What would my stock be worth if I had held it?" Mallory answered; "Over $4,000,000." "Well," said Edison, "It's all gone, but we had a damn good time spending it."

"YOU SAID IT, MARCELINE!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY
ON "THE BIG MYSTERY"

If GIRLS could only tell
The TRUTH about
WHAT attracted them
To their various BEAUX,
Or their different
HUSBANDS, men would Probably EXPIRE from SHOCK.
FEW men are WISE
Enough to know WHY women
Love them.
And only FOOLS try
And GUESS. Probably the Most USUAL reason is Just that girls want to LOVE—someone.
And, like the morning
DAILY DOZEN, there is Quite a little FAITH
MIXED up in it.
The REASON why any
Woman should LOVE
Any man is a MYSTERY
And should REMAIN so.
For if she ever TOLD
HIM, he would probably BE HORRIFIED
To think she could be
So STUPID.

A Real Drama of Intrigue in Boston Theatrical Life After Curtain

CHAPTER 13.

"B-BUT Estabrook! It's preposterous. That P-puritan!" Abelard was forced to pause for a moment, to control his agitation. What Becky had just told him seemed nothing short of cataclysmic, if, indeed, it could conceivably be true. Estabrook in love with Becky—Estabrook who even as a boy had frowned upon [illegible] discretions of classmates! Estabrook the hard [illegible] aristocratic, who had [illegible] of family portraits. Estabrook in love with Becky McCloskey, chorus girl in a Revue!

Abelard heard himself laughing.

"That's right." Becky's voice, sharp with agony, cut [illegible] "I thought you'd see it was funny." She pressed one hand suddenly over her mouth, as if to stop a scream.

"I'm s-sorry," Abelard said [illegible] and rising he went to Becky, took her by the hand and led her to the [illegible] fortable armchair [illegible] cated. "If you'd t-told me [illegible] in l-love with a str[illegible] I couldn't have been more s-shocked. John is a fine fellow, but he's w-w-wooden [illegible] was [illegible]."

"Yes, I know that, son. That's why I'm so [illegible] this morning. I see too how it's funny." Becky made a ghostly effort to [illegible]. "This blanking [illegible] blood and a girl like me—But there it is. Boris, I've fallen in love with him, and I can't fall out again."

"Are you," Abelard asked softly, "quite sure that you aren't [illegible] little dazzled? By the name? And income?"

"If any one else said that, Boris, I'd knock 'em cold. But to you—" Suddenly she began to sing softly.

"Feather beds are soft,
Painted rooms are bonny;
But I'd leave them all
To go with my love Johnny."

Abelard, who had been staring at the flames, turned and brushed a hand across his eyes. "The p-p-problem," he observed, "is not to make me believe it, but to convince M. Estabrook. Understand, Becky, he's grown up thinking all actresses [illegible] and chorus girls worst of all."

There was a tap on the door.

"C-come in."

The Japanese servant appeared, spoke demurely.

"Missa Essblook calling on Missa Abelah."

Upon the very heels of the announcement Estabrook came in.

Estabrook started toward Boris and, since Becky was standing at Abelard's side, it was Becky that Estabrook saw.

He saw Becky, hatless, with tangled hair and eyes that glittered in her dead white face. Suspicion engulfed him like a wave. He felt himself growing suddenly hot and Becky saw him grow red, red from the place where his stiff white collar made a chalk line against his throat to the roots of his brown hair.

He said: "I'm afraid I'm intruding," and wondered that his voice could sound so steady and so clear.

Becky, with a sort of hysteria, clutched the sleeve of Abelard's dressing gown, and wailed: "Make him understand . . . Boris, make him understand. . . ."

Estabrook turned on her. "I don't need Boris to make me understand. You've done that."

"Y-y-you're a fine pair of f-fools," Abelard's brittle voice interrupted. "S-sit down, John. Relax."

"I don't want to sit down," snarled Estabrook, who wanted frightfully to sit down, just then, because his knees felt funny.

They stood there, Abelard in the center, pasty faced in his green robe embroidered with purple flamingoes, Estabrook truculent, with his legs spread apart, his head thrust forward, his clenched hands deep in his pockets, and Becky, her breast throbbing painfully under her thin [illegible], and [illegible] her hands that were pressed against it.

"This is [illegible] too much like a scene in a bad movie!" [illegible] Abelard. "There is n-n-no-one present who needs killing, John. Becky came to tell me that she was in love—and with whom."

A thought of many bad movies flashed through Estabrook's mind. In these, and indeed in all the current newspapers, chorus girls who [illegible] for [illegible] of premises [illegible] started by getting witnesses.

"I'm [illegible] of discussing my [illegible] affairs [illegible] that is necessary," he said [illegible] to Becky. "However [illegible] are proverbially talkative [illegible] I have never heard that your profession is an exception to that [illegible]."

"My profess[illegible]—" Becky began. Then she gulped, [illegible] her head and [illegible] up her coat and hat [illegible] them on her [illegible] and dashed out headlong, almost knocking over the Japanese servant who stood quietly in the hall.

Estabrook whistled and—

"There's no [illegible] like a gentleman [illegible]" murmured Abelard, taking a [illegible] cigarette out of a box on the [illegible] and striking a match.

"But you see," Estabrook answered slowly, "it's a[illegible] because I happen to be in love with that—that girl. I'm, you know, terribly."

Abelard lighted his cigarette.

"That girl!" he said softly, "says [illegible] and he don't. She calls men [illegible] and [illegible]. She cooks breakfast on a [illegible] stove in the [illegible]room. She was born in the [illegible]."

"She's beautiful and good, I think," said Estabrook between his teeth.

"She's a ch-ch-chorus girl," continued Abelard, watching the smoke drift ceilingwards. "She paints and drinks, and smokes, and she swears."

"She loves me, I think," Estabrook returned evenly.

"And d-do you love her?" As she deserves to be loved? Do you love her enough?"

"May I ask by what right you question me, Boris?"

"[illegible] I'm f-fond of you, and [illegible] fond of that kid. And I know just how good she is, and how s-sensitive. Physically strong as a young tiger, but she's as easily h-hurt as a bud, Jack. If you love her, Jack, treat her gently. She's had a rough time, and she needs tenderness f-f-fright[illegible]."

"Do I look like a brute?" Estabrook inquired in anger.

Abelard sighed.

"You [illegible] are hopeless," he murmured. "May the L-Lord help you both."

The Japanese servant appeared once more.

"Missa Scarlett calling," he announced.

WHITE PAINT

Where woodwork has to be painted, white paint is usually better than brown. Brown darkens the rooms. Many people are afraid of white paint on account of the work it entails, but if a broken white or cream shade is used and given a good enamel finish it resists the dirt quite well. When it is dirty it is very easily cleaned with any of the patent cleaners.

'But I Love Him, Don't You Think There's a Chance?' Said Becky

But I love him," protested Becky.

Estabrook turned on her.

Becky dashed out.

Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson---By Ray Stannard Baker

going and coming as a chaplain in the Confederate army, or of his mother constantly fearful for the safety of her husband, her brothers, her friends and, later in the war, worried over the shortness of food.

A time came when it was impossible to obtain commodities like [illegible] when a cake of soap cost $3 in Confederate money, when the Wilson household was eking out its larder with soup made of cowpeas from the [illegible] of which the boy Tommy never forgot.

CHURCH A HOSPITAL.

He must also have seen and wondered at the transformation of his father's great church across the street into a hospital where hundreds of wounded soldiers lay suffering and dying. He must have seen the very churchyard [illegible] into a prison camp, with men in ragged blue uniforms under guard.

He must have been present upon that solemn Sunday [illegible] near about it [illegible] in August—when Dr. Wilson announced to his congregation that a great battle was [illegible] ing, that the Southern army was desperately in need of ammunition and that he would therefore dismiss the congregation at once with a benediction, that they might repair, men, women and children, to the ammunition factories to help with the cartridge rolling. [illegible] obliterated even the Presbyterian Sabbath.

Did the boy share in the excitement and terror of the news that Sherman's army was cutting its way with sword and fire through the heart of the South, that its outposts might at any time be seen in the streets of Augusta?

How did the frantic effort of a discouraged people to save what little was left of their possessions impress the child? Did he see the huge piles of baled cotton rising in the broad main street of the town, carried there from sheds and warehouses so that when Sherman came he could destroy their wealth perchance without setting their houses aflame? Did he share in the relief when Sherman passed [illegible] without entering the town?

SAW DAVIS A CAPTIVE.

We know that he and all his family watched in dumb forbearance the captured President of the Confederate States, Jefferson Davis, passing through the streets, guarded by Federal soldiers, and we know that still later, on a great, if sad, day when peace had come, he was of the eager [illegible] that went [illegible] General Robert E. Lee on his visit to Augusta.

He [illegible] a little boy, to see the greatest hero of the Confederacy who was to remain one of his permanent [illegible] merited the title [illegible] a higher and finer [illegible].

[illegible] an address [illegible] University of North Carolina [illegible] memory [illegible] and looking [illegible].

[illegible] sympathized deeply [illegible] view of the [illegible] Dr. Wilson [illegible] North on the North and [illegible] Southern [illegible] was [illegible] of the [illegible] Southern [illegible].

Some of his own [illegible] were in the Union army, two of them generals [illegible] on the slavery question he never took a strong [illegible]. It was the right of secession [illegible] appealed to the [illegible] his Scotch-Irish heart [illegible] own warm friends [illegible] his loyalty to his people, did the rest.

When the break in the Presbyterian Church took [illegible] memorable and heated [illegible] of [illegible] Assembly [illegible] Dr. Wilson [illegible] Southern cause, and the first Southern Assembly was held [illegible] in Augusta. It was [illegible] Southern Presbyterian [illegible] organized [illegible] to this day.

IN THE BOY'S SOUL.

During all the troubled years of the war and afterward, the boy, Tommy, saw his father [illegible] forward the work of his church with unremitting energy. At the lowest ebb of the war, when the people of Augusta were themselves feeling the pinch of hunger, one may find a record in the minutes of the church of a collection taken for maintaining missions in China. That was the sort of people they were.

Another problem concerned Dr. Wilson deeply and must also have impressed the mind of the boy. Colored people swarmed on every side. The negro question was at the heart of the war itself. We find Dr. Wilson establishing a Sunday school for negroes on November 1?, 186?, a Sunday school that was maintained all through the war and afterward. We find many negro members of his church; there are some even today.

One can see all of these things passing before the boy's eyes, entering into the soul of him, as [illegible] streets, [illegible] the school on [illegible] turned to [illegible] the greatest books [illegible] under the church [illegible] father reading the Psalms or the Book of [illegible] Gospel of St. John [illegible] Foundation."

[illegible] the excesses of [illegible] the [illegible] further [illegible] which became a part of him, that were bred in him when [illegible] was a child."

They furnished the background for not a few of his [illegible] corrected and verified [illegible] which he deals especially with the period, "Division and Re[illegible]" of the first books [illegible] view of the [illegible].

HIS THOUGHTS HIS OWN

Boy or man, Woodrow Wilson never abjured his ind[illegible]. He began early to [illegible] go his own way. [illegible] most struggle to [illegible] sions regarding it.

Many an amateur [illegible] youth brought up [illegible] Tommy Wilson, in the [illegible] reconstruction, [illegible] natural to [illegible] play the [illegible] "waving the [illegible]" keeping alive the [illegible] war, or by [illegible].

We know how deeply Woodrow Wilson loved the South [illegible] and his addresses [illegible] press[illegible] of his [illegible] place in the country [illegible] "where nothing has to be [illegible] to me as the South."

We know also how [illegible] thought about the problems of the Civil War, the history of the [illegible] that led up to it, the [illegible] of the defeat of the South and [illegible] the excesses of the years of reconstruction [illegible] may search through [illegible] his books, [illegible] and never find a single word of hatred or of bitterness.

In an "Atlantic Monthly" article [illegible] he later speaks of the war, [illegible] as "a dark chapter of history," for he knew well what it meant in the lives of human beings, but his position is that of the thoughtful man who is "neither justifying nor condemning, but only comprehending."

Many of the causes which [illegible] Tommy Wilson differ[illegible] inherited [illegible] steady [illegible] always at [illegible] conflicts [illegible] antagonism [illegible] that crashed around [illegible].

What was the church for, and [illegible] not for law, order [illegible] "Liberal things" [illegible] it must not be forgotten [illegible] father [illegible] born [illegible] its important [illegible].

[illegible] had a perspective that was [illegible] early to [illegible].

REJOICED IN UNITY.

It took the courage of [illegible] as early as [illegible] John Bright [illegible] at the University of Virginia [illegible] the South [illegible] in the failure of the Confederacy.

Yet he believed that the South had [illegible] that the question had [illegible] the point where only an appeal to [illegible] was possible or [illegible] that it was well that the war [illegible] as it did, for it [illegible] the [illegible] of the nation. It was [illegible] of [illegible] to forget the past and go [illegible] forward.

The third chapter in "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" will appear tomorrow. It will deal with the adolescent age of the future President at Columbia, S. C. [illegible] Doubleday Page & Co.

$200,000 Film Is Scrapped by Essanay

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

ON Board the Santa Fe Chief, Newton, Kas., Sept. 2?—When a man is willing to chuck nearly $200,000 in the junk heap, I think we can say without any exaggeration that he has the courage of his conviction. George K. Spoor, president of the Essanay Film Company with headquarters in Chicago, has done that thing with "The Flagmaker," directed by J. Stuart Blackton to demonstrate the much discussed Spoor invention.

Mr. Spoor, one of the pioneer film producers, has worked on an invention twelve years that will tend to eliminate the flatness of the screen figures by giving them depth as well as length and breadth.

"My invention showing the third dimension is too valuable to be introduced to the public with an inferior picture," said Mr. Spoor in the interview given me in Chicago. "'The Flagmaker' is a bad example of present day technique and style. I would rather lose the $150,000 and more that I invested in making this film than to release such a conglomeration."

So, it will be some time before the public sees the Spoor invention. Mr. Spoor has proved its practicability by photographing some extraordinary views of Niagara Falls. These I saw when I visited Chicago last year.

YOU may be sure "Live and Let Live," Reginald Denny's next Universal flicker, will get plenty of attention from the publicity department. And why shouldn't it? Sam Jacobson, publicity director of Universal, who is an author as well as A. P. A., has written this little comedy for Mr. Denny.

I am told, too, that it is as good a story as the popular Denny has had since he started being the leading athletic film hero. More power to Sam.

CAMILLA HORN, the fascinating young European actress, who was so much admired in "Faust," is on her way to Hollywood. A telegram received states that John Considine has signed her on a five-year contract. She will make her bow as a screen star in "Cellini," the John Barrymore picture to follow after "The Tempter."

Miss Horn is sure to be a sensation. She is the same type as Greta Garbo and you know without my telling you Greta has vamped a large percentage of the male picture goers of the country.

RAY ROCKETT is [illegible] to New York while this [illegible] is speeding over the rails to Los Angeles. While in New York he will confer with Richard Rowland on a series of foreign [illegible]. As I understand it Mr. Rockett and his family will proceed immediately to Berlin where First National is scheduled to produce a series of motion pictures.

JAMES CRUZE is announced as the supervisor of "The [illegible] Woman," Cecil DeMille's [illegible] patterned after "The [illegible]." Why [illegible] did very well directing "The Covered Wagon." He did not think it necessary then to be a [illegible] director to work under the supervision of Mr. Cruze will [illegible] Elmer Clifton or Rupert Julian.

THIS literary effusion written aboard the Santa Fe has been much encouraged by one Mr. J. Bush, veteran colored porter. Mr. Bush, who was on the [illegible] Twentieth Century train to be run from New York to Chicago, is a poet. He dedicated a poem to Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, and one to President Coolidge.

South is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i.e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Friday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

South's hand is of the type that calls for a pre-emptive bid of three—a seven-card Major suit rich in top honors and practically no side strength. North, with ideal support for a pre-emptive bid of Hearts raises the bid to four to shut out a possible bid of three Spades. East holds a powerful two-suiter, probably good for ten tricks unassisted with either of his suits as trump, and worth a bid to five as a defensive measure at least. In order to show both suits most advantageously East reverses the usual order and bids his Minor suit first, five Clubs. He anticipates a bid of five Hearts by South, after which East can bid five Spades, whereas if East first shows his Spade suit he must bid six in Clubs to overcall five Hearts. Following East's bid of five Spades South passes but North bids six Hearts.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. West's lead is clearly a singleton, marking East with seven Clubs to the King-Queen. As East must also hold at least five Spades to justify his bidding, Declarer marks him with no other cards if any than one Diamond or one Heart.

Trick 10. At this point Declarer reads clearly the adverse holdings. East is marked with the King and Queen of both Spades and Clubs. Consequently West must have three Spades and the Queen of Diamonds.

Trick 11. Declarer effects a double squeeze and makes a Grand Slam. West discards a Spade to retain his high Diamond. If East discards a Club, Dummy's 8 will make; if a Spade, Declarer's two Spades will be good.

GOOD TIME GUY

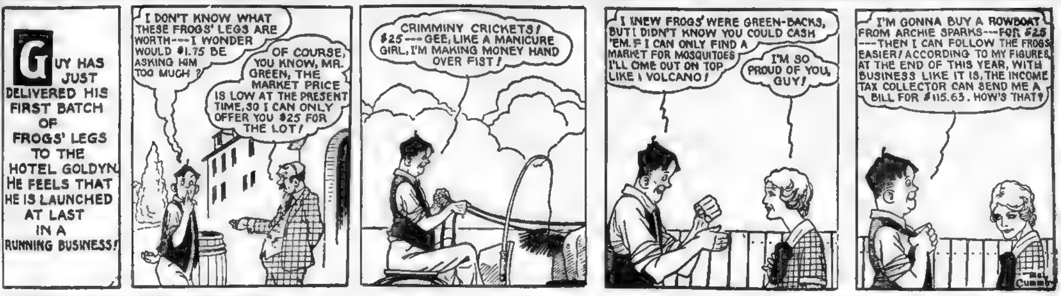
Big Business Man

By Frank Smiley



GUY HAS JUST DELIVERED HIS FIRST BATCH OF FROGS' LEGS TO THE HOTEL GOLDYN. HE FEELS THAT HE IS LAUNCHED AT LAST IN A RUNNING BUSINESS!
I DON'T KNOW WHAT THESE FROGS' LEGS ARE WORTH---I WONDER WOULD $1.75 BE ASKING HIM TOO MUCH?
OF COURSE, YOU KNOW, MR. GREEN, THE MARKET PRICE IS LOW AT THE PRESENT TIME, SO I CAN ONLY OFFER YOU $25 FOR THE LOT!
CRIMMINY CRICKETS! $25---GEE, LIKE A MANICURE GIRL, I'M MAKING MONEY HAND OVER FIST!
I KNEW FROGS' WERE GREEN-BACKS, BUT I DIDN'T KNOW YOU COULD CASH 'EM. IF I CAN ONLY FIND A MARKET FOR MOSQUITOES I'LL COME OUT ON TOP LIKE A VOLCANO!
I'M SO PROUD OF YOU, GUY!
I'M GONNA BUY A ROWBOAT FROM ARCHIE SPARKS---FOR $25---THEN I CAN FOLLOW THE FROGS EASIER! ACCORDING TO MY FIGURES, AT THE END OF THIS YEAR, WITH BUSINESS LIKE IT IS, THE INCOME TAX COLLECTOR CAN SEND ME A BILL FOR $115.63. HOW'S THAT?

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

ACCORDING to our Better Business Bureaus, seventy-five per cent. of all merchandise is bought on the instalment plan.

WE'RE born on credit and buried on deferred payments.

ONE man even opened a charge account with a clairvoyant.

HE liked to look into the past and pay for it in the future.

HE was willing to let Santa Claus take care of the present.

HE'S never been out of debt since his birth. He's fifty years old and his parents still owe the doctor.

HE was the first child. The rest of the children were born C. O. D.

BUT that was before the stork had a bookkeeping department.

NOWADAYS, even house to house pedlars have to employ credit men.

LOTS of people who buy pencils from a street beggar want terms.

HALF the people in this countrp pay for their automobiles on time. The other fifty per cent. aren't quite so prompt.

THE average motorist is only two miles ahead of the finance company.

THE sheriff furnishes more attachments than all the accessory houses combined.

ONE tourist said he was afraid to put his car in reverse for fear he'd back into the last payment.

WOMEN'S clothes are also bought on the instalment plan, and most of the ladies only wear one instalment at a time.

IT'S nice to purchase for cash, but if the poor people did this they wouldn't have any money left to buy liquor or play the horse races.

Keep Your Skin Young

Remove all blemishes and discolorations by regularly using pure mercolized wax. Get an ounce and use as directed. Fine, almost invisible particles of aged skin peel off, until all defects, such as pimples, liver spots, tan, freckles and large pores have disappeared. Skin is beautifully clear, soft and velvety, and face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines, use this face lotion: 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel. At Drug and Department Stores Everywhere.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN is never so happy as when he is giving a woman "advice"—and he is always "advising" some woman about something.

* * *

When a woman marries a man, she acquires an authentic human edition of "The Book of Knowledge," that can "tell her all about everything"—and insists on doing it!

* * *

Some children can't take calomel, and some women can't take advice. The latter are always either spinsters until they are forty—or divorcees before they are thirty.

* * *

A man may admire an intelligent woman, but the woman he loves is the one who hangs onto his coat-lapel and begs him to tell her "all about" something she knows more about than he does.

* * *

The average man could accomplish twice as much in this world if he did not spend half his life in telling a woman how to do things.

* * *

After a woman through her intuition and ingenuity has found out how to do something, a man can always stand around and tell her a better way of doing it.

* * *

No doubt, after Eve discovered the use of fig-leaves, Adam spent all his Sunday mornings telling her of a better way of pinning them together.

Before marriage, it is rather thrilling to discover what a Big, Beautiful, Wonderful Mentality you have captured. It makes you feel so little and tender and helpless. But after marriage, you discover that his solicitude was not inspired by love of you but by love of "giving advice."

* * *

Every husband is a little "efficiency expert" in the home!

* * *

He can tell a woman all about how France could pay her war debt, while he is wondering where the money for the next installment on the insurance is coming from.

* * *

He can expound the whole philosophy of getting "service" out of the cook and the tradesmen, while he holds up the work down at his office.

* * *

He can come in, two hours late for dinner, and deliver a beautiful homily on how to control the nerves, and how to keep food hot.

* * *

He can deliver a lecture on system, while you are hunting for his hat and his umbrella in the morning—and a thesis on orderliness and method, while you are trying to find the screwdriver he left in the medicine closet, or sweeping up the cigarette stubs he left behind the piano.

* * *

He is never so brilliant in his diatribes on how to economize on tomato catsup and dried apricots as the morning after he has lost the mortgage money in a game of poker.

* * *

He would rather give a woman fifty dollars' worth of advice on how to keep her heels from running down than five dollars with which to go out and buy a new pair of shoes.

ISADORA'S ART DIVIDED BERLIN SOCIETY

world of beauty and could appreciate the loftiness of her ideals.

But in 1901 Isadora had still many things to learn about her public, and upon her arrival in Berlin she drifted along the lines which she had followed in London and Paris.

The nobility of the German capital was happy to take her up. She was new. She was young and graceful. Her ideas were amusingly unconventional. She had had flattering homage in London and Paris.

Berlin was divided between admiration and disapproval of the American dancer, for word had reached that city concerning Isadora's "extravagant utterances" in the salon of the Duchess d'Uzes in Paris.

The extravagant utterance, which today would be considered almost inane, was her expressed ambition to open a college of the dance where an army of young girls would renounce every other sensation and every other career in order to place the Dance in its proper place as one of the arts and almost as a religion.

MATRONS AT CLASSES

Such statements, plus her calm indifference to the ardent wooing of Harry K. Thaw, piqued the general interest in the girl, and it was only a short time before she had a large class of pupils drawn from the ranks of the highest German nobility and aristocracy.

To those who knew the Isadora of ten-years later, it is strange that she should have undertaken to teach her art, not only, to grown girls, daughters of prominent families, but even to matrons. Apparently the girl believed that is was possible for women of the world to shake off the trappings and conventions of modern existence and get down to the rigid simplicity of action and outlook which her cult of the beautiful necessitated.

Gradually the hardshells of German society relaxed their sentiments of distrust of the revolutionary young dancer, and they journeyed to the classes to watch Isadora and their friends interpret "The Spirit of Spring" in bare feet and filmy drapery.

Here again Isadora had opportunity to deliver solemn pronouncements upon the dance of the future.

"The poetry of motion is never more beautifully illustrated than by the perfect human body," she would tell her listeners.

"But to acquire perfect poise in the rhythm of the dance, knowledge of the use and the control of the muscles is required, which, unfortunately, but few teachers of the dance consider necessary. Hence the number of stiff, awkward dancers, who, secure in their knowledge of 'the step' and 'keeping time,' whirl over the floor in anything but a pleasing way.

PANTOMIME THE BASIS

"All expressive movements are component parts of the dance. A child holds out its hand for a flower, runs to examine its beauty, plucks it and carries it off. This is the dance of the child and the music of the flower."

Despite Isadora's protestations, it is evident that pantomime was the basis of much of her dancing at this period. Not pantomime of the type of Pierrot and Pierrette dances, but rather suggestions of the joys of childhood, the flight of birds, the ripple of waves upon the water, the sparkle of sunlight, scattering of flowers and sprinkling of seeds.

None of the harsher emotions entered into her work. There was nothing of passionate love or ardent hate. To preserve her thought of perpetual movement in the dance, she made use of no rigid objects, such as spears or hoops or vases. The only objects employed in her dances, apart from the human form and flowing drapery, were Spring flowers and rose petals.

Towards the close of her career, Isadora rigorously discarded all of the beautiful dances of her youth and her maturity which had the slightest suggestion of pantomime, restricting herself to postures and movements which originated in some great emotion or spiritual exaltation within herself. Even then she indignantly denied that her work had ever bordered upon pantomime or the dramatic.

Countess Von Bulow, wife of the Imperial Chancellor and Countess von Thielewinckler, wife of one of the leading financiers of Germany were among her patronesses in Berlin. The Academy arranged for reduced prices on tickets to her performances, but Herr von Werner, president of the Berlin Artists' Society, indignant at the idea of German ladies going barefoot, wrote a stern letter refusing to "encourage immorality" by accepting the privilege.

In tomorrow's chapter on the Life and Loves of Isadora Duncan, Fred Toye will describe the influence upon the dancer's career created by Edward Gordon Craig, son of Ellen Terry.

MAN HUNT

fering from nervous shock, to her father's home.

Donda, brought here by Sergeant B. F. Hodgman of the Lewiston Police Department, picked up the trail at the scene of the attack.

Making off through the woods the dog with nose close to the ground, made a wide circuit and then came back to the Bar Mills-Gorham road. He followed the road eight miles, almost into Gorham. Then he made a short detour to the railroad tracks, retracing the trail to the highroad.

Sheriff Lawrence A. Sawyer and Deputy Sheriff Charles T. Ricker of Waterboro concluded that the man got aboard an automobile, but a search of the woodland was continued and all nearby communities were notified.

GRID WORLD MARVELS AT B. U. SHOWING

If any football enthusiast was informed that Boston University had a football team last Saturday morning he would have laughed loud and long.

This mirth really would have been justifiable, too.

There were only eighteen men out for the team until last Monday. The squad practiced more than two weeks before there were enough men on hand to hold a scrimmage. Football affairs were so bad at the intown school that there had been talk of abandoning the game for good.

Plans were underway to give up the game. Lack of interest and poor material were given as the reason.

In the space of a few hours all was changed as regards the football team. The Terriers had held the strong Army to a 13 to 0 score and its loudest critics had become the greatest boosters.

It is almost impossible to conceive B. U. playing such a game.

An idea of how startling was B. U.'s performance is well illustrated by the pre-game predictions of men who have an excellent knowledge of football.

Of the twenty scores picked, the nearest to the actual score was 29 to 0. One expert went as far as to say the score would be 60 to 0 in favor of the Army.

And it is not surprising that they so picked. Last year the Army took the Terriers to the tune of 45 to 0, and this year, the Cadets are just as strong as ever. Boston University, on the other hand, was looked upon as hopeless. The game shows what can be done in a short time with good coaches and fighting athletes.

Coaches Brown and Robinson are grade "A" mentors. They refuse to consider anything impossible. They took a green team last year and brought it along splendidly.

This year there was no need to teach fundamentals and the coaches showed the team real football. The result has been partly proven.

Of course one game does not mean a season, but a good start means a great deal.

The Terriers have met their stiffest test. The rest of the schedule is comparatively easy.

If the first game, therefore, is a criterion of Boston University's ability then the time has come for the Terriers to rise in the football world.

Richards First to Win Pro Trophy

New York, Sept. 26 (I.N.S.).—Vincent Richards, former Davis Cup player, is America's first professional tennis champion. He defeated Howard Kinsey in the finals here, 11—9, 6—4, 6—4, and received a bronze trophy and $1,000 in cash. Kinsey received $700.

Nearly 1,500 persons saw the final match, and the promoters of the tournament predicted a rosy future for professional tennis.

ATLANTIC TOWN TEAM LOOKING FOR GAMES

The Atlantic Town Team, semi-pro football champions of Quincy last year, is arranging its schedule for this season and has two or three open dates for Sunday games away from home. The team is composed of former Quincy High School and Thayer Academy stars.

Teams desiring games should communicate with B. H. Williams, No. 81 Billings st., Atlantic, or phone Granite 1823-M between 6:00 and 7:00 P. M. and ask for Mr. Lordan.

Doo Dads Loafing

The Doo Dads of Somerville are anxious to arrange a game for Columbus Day morning, October 12.

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

MAKE YOUR APPROACHES ROLL INTO THE CUP OR PAST IT

When a professional drops an approach into the cup he doesn't think it particularly extraordinary at all, whereas if the ordinary player does it the buttons begin to pop off his sweater coat. This difference in attitude reflects the fact that the professional never for a moment permits himself to forget that the ball cannot get into the hole until it first gets to the hole, and they keep in mind that if they keep the ball rolling past the hole it will eventually, in response to the law of averages, pop into the hole—and, sure enough, it does drop in once in a while. Right there is a fine golf lesson for any average player. If you can hit a golf ball at all you certainly can hit it forty or fifty yards.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON:
1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND:
1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

A Dream Now, Perhaps

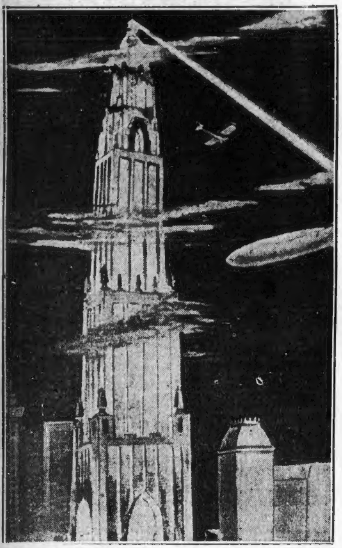
But This and Much Greater Things Will Be Done in Time



THE PROPOSED 1,320-FOOT TOWER TO BE BUILT AS A MONUMENT TO LINDBERGH'S ACHIEVEMENT

The energetic City of Chicago, never satisfied with small things, proposes to eclipse skyscrapers of New York and the Eiffel Tower in Paris, and at the same time honor the brave Lindbergh with this magnificent tower to commemorate his flight across the Atlantic.

It would exceed by 320 feet the highest structure ever made by man—barring the Tower of Babel. We don't know how high that was, but it probably wasn't more than 500 feet high. In any case, it was a long way from threatening to penetrate the heavens.

This tower, to be an office building, would have at the top a beacon light visible at a distance of 300 miles, to guide fliers from all directions.

And an additional feature would be a mooring mast at the top to which dirigibles could be attached, elevators bringing passengers down into the heart of Chicago.

When Chicago says "I will," she usually does what she says, and it is to be hoped this monument will be built.

At all events, the idea is useful.

First, men IMAGINE things, as ancients imagined the flight of Daedalus from the Minotaur's labyrinth. Some centuries later they actually make the flying machine and FLY.

The day is coming when buildings will be erected on this earth compared with which this proposed Chicago building will seem a small thing.

Men will not depend always on accidental mountain tops or hill tops for their needs. They will build heights AS THEY NEED THEM and WHERE they need them.

This tower is planned to honor one plucky American flier.

Other towers twice, three times, and ten times as high will be built in years to come, with landing places for flying machines at the top, and working space for the inhabitants of a fair sized city on the many sun-lit, airy floors below.

When the flying machine is developed as it will be, men will no longer be crowded in narrow streets of cities, business and manufacture will not be congested in cities as they are now.

Workers will live far from their work, a hundred to five hundred miles away, workers of a certain group flying to their big factory or office building in the morning, flying back in the afternoon.

The future will see great buildings of steel and glass, built to contain half a million workers or more, with flying machines coming and going, like swallows flying into an old barn.

Our ancestors could not have imagined the skyscraper, the submarine, flying machine or wireless, or radio.

Our descendants will see many things that we could not possibly imagine, things that would make "Lindbergh's Chicago Tower" seem like an adobe hut compared with today's biggest skyscraper.

Courtesy

It's Worth Teaching

The New Jersey State police have made the teaching of courtesy a major subject in their training school. The officers either will be models of politeness in dealing with the public, or they won't be officers at all, Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf has told them.

This Chesterfieldian influence might well be spread among the people with whom the police have to deal. Let us have courtesy taught to all.

OIL INDUSTRY IS IMMENSE ONE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

FEW people realize the immensity of the oil industry. In an article in a recent number of the Review of Reviews by Judson C. Welliver, some interesting facts are given. They are as follows:

Some $11,000,000,000 is invested in the oil industry in this country.

Of this amount $3,500,000,000 is ascribed to the Standard Oil group of companies.

About 1,100,000 people are employed in producing oil. Add to this the operators of filling stations, say, 225,000, and again, the stockholders and bondholders, owners of royalties, etc., estimated at 1,500,000. Thus the oil business is a tremendous distributor of incomes.

Showing how much of a gamble the oil business is, some $700,000,000 was spent in twelve years drilling dry holes and $500,000,000 more was lost in wells that produced nothing but deficits. Wells a mile deep are not remarkable. Some exceed a mile and a half.

According to the Bureau of Mines there were 465 refineries last January 1. Almost half a billion dollars' worth of oil products were included in foreign trade in 1925. The only industry that even approached this amount was the automobile and accessories.

Oil products represent one-sixth of the freight carriage of the railroads.

There are 150,000 tank cars in service.

Oil is the largest factor in Panama Canal transportation. There are 90,000 miles of pipe line in the country. Without these pipe lines the railroads would be swamped with the transportation of oil products.

It might be said that road building is a by-product of the petroleum industry as the gasoline taxes last year amounted to $200,000,000.

Approximately $1,000,000,000 is being spent this year on new roads.

And to think that there are now living people who remember the time when the oil business was non-existent. And some of us can remember back when there were no automobiles or trolley cars, to say nothing of airplanes and radios.

We may well ask, what next?

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

RED flowers glowing in a vase, how brave, how bright their bloom! What wealth of loveliness they lend to all the shadowed room! Red flowers that flaunt their beauty here against the sombre walls, till like a trumpet, bold and clear unto the soul it calls. Such beauty blossoms in a life, sometimes, that else is dark, and through the clouds and shadows there it sends its deathless spark. Men find it in a look, a laugh, some trifle few would prize, and yet it burns away earth's chaff lights path to Paradise. Such beauty comes to you, to me to gladden all our days, and yet despite its marvels rare, it blooms in common ways. For hearts are brave, and need not much to banish doubt and gloom; only, perhaps, a song, a touch, red flowers in a room!

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

MANY people can be found stirring in the early morning besides the workers if searcher knows where to look.

Many business executives find the very early hours an excellent period for recreation and physical toning up.

One elderly man, nationally known for his work in education, has an invariable habit of taking a stroll through the woods near his home. He does this in Winter and Summer, up at six for his hour or hour and a half in the fields and among the shrubs.

One downtown manager is a great devotee of riding. Every morning his horse is brought saddled and the rider takes an hour's journey through Jamaica Way.

Overlooking the entire town in which he lives, a famous artist has his small garden. In this he digs, weeds, spades and experiments continually. It gives him his necessary relaxation.

In a bookstore on Washington Street were a young couple and a book on marriage. The wife pointed out the page which told how the husband should help the wife with many small matters, including after dinner dishes.

"Bunk," said our hero. But in the home of a Boston man who made his wealth from the war the husband always assists his wife when the maid is out. He does not feel it below his dignity to assist with household routine.

"JIMMIE" PARSONS, who carves out the publicity for Mayor Nichols, is now known as the "flying secretary." He has apparently taken up flying as a hobby, although he only wants to be a passenger. Recently he flew up the North Shore to Marblehead and then down to Cohasset. Returning, he soared over the city and participated in several stunts, including hops and immelman turns. Flying has given him an opportunity to inspect the airport at East Boston from above, so he may inform the mayor as to its appearance, approach, etc. "Jimmie" knows all the flying "lingo" and has several hours to his credit.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOUR child came through the Summer husky and brown and merry. When you look at him proudly, I wonder if you ever think of that Other Child whom the Summer has left bent and listless, that other child who worked through the blazing months for YOU on the truck farms of Maryland, the orchards of California, the cotton fields of Michigan?

Every Summer, while your youngsters dig pirate caves in the back yard or play at Boy Scout camps, those Other Children, many of them mere babies, are moving from one harvest to another, living like beasts, doing drudgery which weakens and often cripples them for life.

All over the nation this tragic migration takes place, continuing through every month of the year. They travel with their families, stopping wherever the harvest workers are needed, and take their place in the fields beside the parents, working frantically to reap the ripened crops, sometimes for eight hours a day, sometimes—as in the beet fields for fifteen or even sixteen hours a day.

Your child slept in a spotless cot this Summer, in an atmosphere of love and refinement. Alice Channing tells us how that Other Child slept on a truck farm in Maryland.

"Many camps contained but one building known as a shanty . . which served as sleeping quarters for the workers. Windows usually lacked glass or shutters, or both. The rooms were divided into sections by boards . . . Each family was allotted a pen. At night, men, women and children, partially clad, one family separated from the other by the plank ten inches in height, lay side by side . . . In some, futile attempts at privacy had been made by hanging up a blanket . . . Some families have put up lace curtains in the absence of screens."

If you want to know more about it write to the Federal Labor Bureau or the National Child Labor Commission. They have plenty to tell you.

Your child swam and raced all day. Those other children crawled across the fields in the blazing sun or the driving rain, rising only when their backs became utterly cramped, never stopping to play. They will still be crawling in October when the frosts have set in. The piercing winds will freeze their wet shirts to their little backs. Suppose it were YOUR ten-year-old child?

Why are these things?

Because we have no National Child Labor Laws. We have laws to protect cows and trees and oranges and pigs, but we have no federal law to protect our little children.

We almost had one. For years, noble men and women worked for such a law, while greedy operators of farms and factories and equally greedy parents fought them furiously. When the law was ready the Supreme Court refused to pass it, saying that it was unconstitutional and that such laws must be handled by the individual States. But it is impossible to pass such laws in many of our States. They are sparcely inhabited by weak, indifferent people, or people of foreign standards, and dominated by Big Interests. Child workers are profitable to both the poor and the rich in such communities. Naturally they will not pass laws which will cut off their profit. Think of that sometimes when you order beet sugar or cotton cloth.

SUPPOSE SHE WERE YOUR LITTLE GIRL—?
